BODY OF BOOTH LIES IN STATE.

Great Display of Sincere Respect from All Classes.

Last Tribute to Noted Evangelist Paid by Rich and Poor Alike.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—The body of the late General William Booth lay in state today and the occasion produced such a display of sincere respect from all classes as has probably never been excelled. All nations and all creeds were represented among the many thousands of people who paid their last tribute to the great evangelist.

Even before dawn, despite a pelting cold rain, thousands were waiting in front of Congress Hall, where the body had been conveyed from the late general's private residence. Before the general public was admitted, however, a large number of personal friends, public officials and high officers of the Salvation Army came to pay their last respects. Then from 10 o'clock onward a constant stream of humanity, unchecked throughout the day, filed in reverent silence past the catafalque of the dead general. Poorly clad women had trampled miles through the rain to obtain a last sight of the man who had brought some sunshine into their lives. Shoulder to shoulder with them were fashionably dressed women who desired to pay their homage to the dead Christian leader and uplifter.

The usual signs of mourning were not visible. Flying over the great hall at the top of a tall flag pole was the Salvation banner, with "Blood and fire" upon it. Draped above the doorway were a Union Jack and a German flag, supported on each side by the Stars and Stripes of the United States and the Rising Sun of Japan. Except for Salvation Army flags there was not a banner in the hall.

The plain, hard wood casket was covered with a pall made of the Salvation Army coat of arms, which supported, instead of a sword, the dead general's favorite Bible, hymn book and famous campaign cap. The coffin rested on a marble base, underneath a huge canopy of gold and white muslin, draped with red and blue. Standing at the four corners of the bier cadets held the flags of Great Britain, the United States, Japan and Germany. All around were Body guards of Salvation Army officers, wearing red and white bands on their sleeves. At the foot of the casket stood the last portrait of the dead general, while at its head was a painting of the late Mrs. Booth.

The body of the dead missionary was dressed in the familiar frock uniform coat he always wore. It was open to show the red jersey bearing the words "blood and fire", the coat of arms of the Salvation Army, emblazoned on the breast. The silver hair and beard and the waxen face contrasted with the brilliancy of the uniform and gave the figure a life-like appearance.

Many of those who passed on both sides of the coffin were workmen and housewives who had snatched a few moments from their busy day to say farewell to the man who had gained the esteem of all, and the gratitude of many.

ALL FORMALITIES COMPLETED.

TOKIO, Aug. 23.—Yoshihito, the new emperor of Japan, today completed the formalities connected with the accession to the throne. The concluding function was the reading by the premier of a special imperial edict to the members of the Diet assembled in extraordinary session. The document was textually as follows:

"I have ascended the throne of my imperial ancestors and expect to follow in the footsteps of the late emperor, obeying the guidance of my ancestors."

An appropriation of $750,000 to cover the expenses of the funeral of the emperor was then introduced. The remainder of the cost of the funeral ceremonies, which will amount altogether to $1,000,000, will be borne by the emperor's private purse.

The lying in state of the body of Mutsuhito is to be viewed by the entire diplomatic corps September 4, who will be admitted to the death chamber after an audience with the new emperor and empress.

RE-INFORCEMENTS TO BE SENT.

State Department Urges Early Start of the Prairie for Colon.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—The State Department is urging the navy to have transport Prairie started as soon as possible for Colon. The marines the ship is to carry for service in Nicaragua, however, cannot be concentrated before tomorrow. State Department officials are hoping that the dissension in the rebels' quarters, over the provisional presidency, will keep up until the arrival of American re-inforcements, as there is little to fear from combined attack while the rebels are at odds.

CRUISER PRAIRIE COALS.

Vessel to Sail Saturday for Colon With Marines for Nicaragua.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 23.—Cruiser Prairie, which will carry marines to Colon, whence they will proceed to Nicaragua, arrived at the Philadelphia navy yard today from Portsmouth. The work of coaling the ship and the placing of stores on board was at once begun. The cruiser is under orders to sail tomorrow morning.

ORDERED TO LAND AT CORINTO.

The California to Leave Bluejackets and Detachment of Marines.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Armored cruiser California, speeding for Panama, has been ordered to put in at Corinto and land 340 bluejackets and her full detachment of 60 marines. After this the vessel will steam immediately for Panama to take on marines which leave Philadelphia tomorrow on transport Prairie. The California probably will arrive at Corinto Wednesday.

CONTRIBUTIONS WERE ACCEPTABLE

Archbold Says Bliss Assured Him Roosevelt Approved.

Second Gift Was Declined and Attacks on Standard Oil Began.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—John D. Archbold today told the Senate committee investigating campaign funds that the Standard Oil Company's $125,000 contribution to the Republican war chest of 1904 was made upon assurances from Cornelius N. Bliss that "the contribution was acceptable to Mr. Roosevelt and that further contributions would be acceptable."

"I told Mr. Bliss we did not want to make the contribution unless it was to be gratefully received," he said. "Mr. Bliss told us of Mr. Roosevelt's attitude toward business and said he believed Mr. Roosevelt would be a fair and conservative man when it came to the test. Mr. Bliss urged that the policies of the Republican party were the safest for business. We decided that our interests as a business organization lay on the Republican side and we decided to make this contribution."

Mr. Archbold explained that $100,000 went to the Republican national committee and $25,000 was given to Senator Penrose for the Republican state committee. "The $25,000 given to Mr. Penrose," he said, "was a political contribution and not a payment for services in public or private life."

Later, when Bliss came and asked the Standard Oil Company for more money—about $150,000—Archbold said the board of directors refused to contribute further. He quoted Bliss as saying: "I speak to you personally; I think you had better make this contribution. If you don't somebody else will."

Later Archbold said that when the bureau of corporations began making adverse reports on the Standard Oil Company Mr. Bliss admitted that the government's attacks were unjust, but said he had no influence with President Roosevelt.

President Roosevelt approved these attacks," declared Archbold, "without investigation or the slightest knowledge of the facts. These reports of Garfield and Smith were the work of mere puppets, who jumped when Roosevelt pulled the string."

When the Standard Oil magnate was asked if he thought the company's refusal to contribute further was the cause of the "unjust" government attack he bit his lip and said: "Well, I don't know."

When Mr. Archbold finished his testimony several members of the committee conferred over the advisability of inviting Colonel Roosevelt to testify. Senator Penrose desires the committee to subpoena the colonel.

Mr. Archbold's testimony, however, was regarded of such importance that it was determined to call William Rockefeller if his health will permit and to recall George B. Cortelyou, Republican national chairman in 1904, who appeared before the committee July 11 and could not recall that any contributions from corporations were received in the Roosevelt campaign. Mr. Cortelyou also testified that at that time he had never heard of a contribution by Archbold or any one "on his behalf."

When Mr. Archbold was excused it was announced that Senator Penrose would take the stand late today.

The star witness appeared at the hearing room an hour before the time and chatted with Senator Jones. Senator Penrose came after Archbold arrived. Messengers were hurried out to find Senators Oliver and Pomerene, who were to sit as members of the committee. Finally the committee assembled, Mr. Archbold was sworn and Senator Clapp asked him what contribution the Standard Oil Company had made to the campaign of 1904.

"We made two contributions to the Republican campaign in 1904—one to Cornelius N. Bliss of $100,000 and the other to Senator Penrose of $25,000," replied Archbold.

"Do you know when the contribution of $100,000 to the Republican campaign was made?" asked Clapp.

"I have not the date in mind," said Archbold, "nor have I had time to thoroughly search for it. My recollection is that it was about the middle of September, 1904." Archbold said his recollection was that it was given to Mr. Bliss in currency."

"Had you any previous talk with Mr. Bliss as to this matter, before you made the contribution?" asked Senator Clapp.

"Yes, some time before, either at my office or that of H. H. Rogers," answered Archbold; "we had a talk about politics and contributions and I said the matter would have to be submitted to our board. It was submitted later and the board decided to contribute."

Mr. Archbold said the $25,000 contribution to Penrose was probably in currency.

Subsequently to these contributions Archbold said he talked with Bliss not later than October 10 about further contributions. He thought Rogers might have been at one of them. He remembered that no one else was present. As a result of these conference it was decided not to make the further contribution.

Mr. Archbold said that in the 1904 campaign he had not been connected with the United States Steel Corporation, the American Tobacco Company, the American Sugar Refining Company or any railroad combination, and that he had not discussed with any representatives of the corporations named the question of campaign contributions.

"I talked very frankly with Mr. Bliss," said Archbold. "I told him we wanted to make this contribution, but not without the knowledge of the powers that be. We wanted it understood and appreciated by Colonel Roosevelt. Mr. Bliss smilingly assured me that such would be the case."

Asked by Clapp if he made any personal contributions the witness replied that if he had it was a small amount and he had no recollection of it. He said he had no knowledge of either John D. Rockefeller or William Rockefeller making individual contributions to the campaign.

Mr. Archbold said he was aware of the talk about the Harriman contri-

"LEFTY LOUIE" NOT IN WESTERN CITY.

Report Denied at the District Attorney's Office.

Policemen Held in Connection With Bribery Charge Plead Not Guilty.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Considerable mystery was thrown about a report emanating from the district attorney's office this afternoon that Louis Rosenzweig, alias "Lefty Louie," one of the gun men wanted in the Rosenthal murder case, had been found in a suburb of a small western city "near the Rocky mountains." A member of Whitman's staff was authority for the statement, with the additional information that two detectives had been sent to get the man and would probably arrive here Thursday. The report had hardly been circulated when prompt denial was made from the district attorney's office that "Lefty Louie" had been found. Whether this was a denial of expediency or fact could not be ascertained this afternoon.

The statement was made that "Lefty Louie" and Harry Horowitz, otherwise known as "Gyp the Blood," were in the Catskills at the time New York detectives went there to search for them. The two gun men separated when they found that a search was being made for them. Private detectives are said to have furnished the district attorney with the information regarding the location of "Lefty Louie."

Steinert and White, policemen who were indicted by the grand jury in connection with the arrest of "Jack" Zelig, were arraigned before Judge Mulqueen today. The two policemen, who spent last night in the Tombs, pleaded not guilty to the indictments charging perjury and they were held in $10,000 bail. Judge Mulqueen gave them until Wednesday to change their pleas if they so desire. The case is now being probed by District Attorney Whitman, who has let it become known that he has obtained evidence implicating a police inspector and a civilian, with an office at police headquarters, in good standing. The state's attorney has been able to get a series of interesting coincidences from four bank accounts and safe deposit boxes belonging to the inspector and the civilian, whose records are being inquired into. Heavy withdrawals of funds by the inspector followed on the same day by a visit of the civilian to his safe deposit box. There were many of these coincidental visits. The district attorney says he believes that the inspector was "splitting" with the civilian.

While Mr. Whitman will not commit himself, it is known that he expects an offer of a complete confession from a man high in police circles, whose story will lay bare the graft system to its roots and whose narration will involve many others who have profited by blackmail on gambling and disorderly houses.

WILL SETTLE IN AUSTRIA.

BAR HARBOR, Maine, Aug. 23.—Baron Hengelmuller Von Hengervar, Austrian ambassador to the United States, formally announced today that he has been granted leave to return to Austria next Thursday. It is his intention not to return, but to settle permanently in his own country after being in the diplomatic service 44 years, 20 of which have been spent in the United States. He has made no plans further than to occupy his seat in the House of Lords. Baron Hengelmuller said:

"I am going on leave at present, sailing from New York for home Thursday, September 5. It is my intention not to return, but to settle permanently in my own country after an absence of so many years. I have informed my own government and the American State Department of my intention, which I shall carry out unless something unforeseen and unforseeable occurs. I expect to occupy my seat in the House of Lords and further than that I have made no plans. I have been in the diplomatic service 44 years, 20 of which have been spent in the United States, the past 18 years consecutively. Both myself and my family are leaving the United States with feelings of the deepest regret."

TAFT APPOINTS COMMITTEE.

Members to Investigate Work of Board of United States Appraisers.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—President Taft today appointed a committee of government officials to investigate the board of United States appraisers to ascertain if there has been neglect of duty, malfeasance in office or inefficiency on the part of any of the board's members. The board has headquarters in New York.

President Taft named as the investigation committee, Chandler P. Anderson, counsellor for the State Department; William Loeb, Jr., collector of customs at New York, and Winfred T. Dennison, assistant Attorney General of the United States. Mr. Dennison prosecuted the sugar fraud cases.

The Treasury Department announced that the scope of the inquiry would be broad enough to include all the activities of the board, both at New York and at ports throughout the country, where its members hear customs appeals. The investigation will be part of the general plan of the Treasury Department to rehabilitate the customs service as a whole.

The board of the United States general appraisers is composed of H. M. Somerville, president; T. S. Sharretts, W. B. Howell, I. F. Fischer, B. S. Waite, E. G. Hay, C. P. McClelland, R. H. Chamberlain and S. B. Cooper. Each receives a salary of $9,000.

UNDERWOOD SCORES TARIFF.

Tells How the Laboring Man Is Taxed at Every Turn.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—Majority Leader Underwood, reviewing the achievements of the Democratic House in the Congressional Record today, sets forth as he sees it the situation before the American consumer under the present tariff system, in this fashion:

"Under the present oppressive tariff law the laboring man returns at night from his toil clad in a woolen suit taxed 75 per cent; shoes taxed 12 per cent; stockings and underwear 76 per cent; a cotton shirt taxed 5 per cent, and woolen hat and woolen gloves taxed 78 per cent. He carries a dinner pail taxed 45 per cent, and greets his wife as she looks through a window pane taxed 62 per cent, with a curtain taxed 42 per cent.

"After scraping his shoes on an iron scraper taxed 75 per cent, he wipes them on a mat taxed 50 per cent. He lifts the door latch taxed 45 per cent, steps on a carpet taxed 62 per cent and meets his wife. She is mending an umbrella taxed 50 per cent with thread taxed 30 per cent.

"The house is made of brick taxed at 25 per cent and lumber taxed 9 per cent, with paint taxed 32 per cent. Their wall paper was taxed 25 per cent and plain furniture 35 per cent. He hangs his pail on a steel pin taxed 45 per cent, using soap taxed 20 per cent. His looking glass was taxed 45 per cent and he combs his hair with a rubber comb taxed at 35 per cent."

"He proceeds to eat his supper, which was cooked on a stove taxed 45 per cent, for which his wife used pots and kettles taxed 45 per cent. On their table is common crockery taxed 55 per cent and cheap glass tumblers taxed 45 per cent. The sugar he put in his tea is taxed 56 per cent which he stirs with a spoon taxed 45 per cent. His meal is a frugal one because the cost of living is high.

"He uses a knife and fork taxed 50 per cent, eats salt fish taxed 10 per cent, bread 20 per cent, potatoes 22 per cent, salt 33 per cent, butter 31 per cent and rice 62 per cent. He proceeds to read a book taxed 25 per cent and at the close of the day reclines in an iron frame bed taxed 45 per cent, with a mattress taxed 20 per cent sheets taxed 45 per cent, woolen blankets taxed 75 per cent and a cotton spread 45 per cent.

"He is taken ill and the doctor prescribes medicine taxed 25 per cent, which, being ineffective, he passes from this active sphere of life and his remains are deposited in a coffin taxed 35 per cent, which is conveyed to a cemetery in a wagon taxed 25 per cent, deposited in his resting place in mother earth and the grave filled in by use of a spade taxed 45 per cent, while over his grave is raised a monument taxed 50 per cent.

Mr. Underwood at considerable length reviewed the legislation enacted by the Democratic House and condemned the Republican party as disclosed in the session now closing.

TARIFF BLOW AT GERMANY.

MacVeagh Orders Countervailing Duty on Bounty-Boosted Peas.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—A countervailing duty on importation of wheat and rye flour and split peas from Germany was ordered by Secretary MacVeagh today because the commodities enjoy a bounty from the German government. This decisive step was necessary, officials declare, to protect the American split pea industry, which, it is added, is being destroyed by German competition, grown to formidable proportions by reason of the bounty.

While the move is fraught with grave possibilities of retaliation and a consequent tariff war between the United States and the German empire, officials of the Treasury Department were inclined to hope that Germany would repeal the bounty, as it is said not to be popular in that country.

The order, which becomes effective in 30 days, affects split peas primarily, as the importations of German flour are negligible. A great quantity of German peas enter the United States annually.

Protests against the bounty have poured into the Treasury Department from Michigan, Minnesota and the Northwest, where the peas thrive. Germany, it is said, has practically driven American split peas out of the market in the Eastern states, and is making inroads in the central West and other parts of the country.

FRANCE STRIKES AT TEACHERS.

Cabinet Votes to Dissolve Organizations of Instructors.

PARIS, Aug. 22.—The French government exploded a bombshell in educational circles by a decision reached at today's cabinet council, when it was determined to dissolve all the teachers' professional syndicates. The action of the cabinet is the direct result of the approval of the action of the anti-military group expressed at the recent congress of the Federation of Teachers' Societies. Resolutions were then adopted approving anti-militarism, the apostles of which have even gone the length of preaching desertion among the soldiers serving in the army and thus causing much unrest.

The condemnation of the teachers' revolution has been widespread among politicians of all parties and when the minister of public instruction brought the matter before his colleagues today he was authorized to take immediate steps to dissolve the teachers' syndicates. There are between 60 and 70 teachers' syndicates with a membership of about 60,000.

WHEN THE TITANIC WENT DOWN.

Personal Experience in That Terrible Disaster of a Newport Summer Visitor.

The following graphic description of the sinking of the Titanic is by Miss Elizabeth W. Shutes, a young woman who is spending the summer in this city, and gives an interesting account of the personal experience of the writer in that terrible disaster:

Such a biting cold air poured into my stateroom that I could not sleep, and the air had so strange an odor, as if it came from a clammy cave. I had noticed that same odor in the ice cave on the Eiger glacier. It all came back to me so vividly I could not sleep, but lay in my berth until the cabin grew so very cold that I got up and turned on my electric stove. It threw a cheerful red glow around, and the room was soon comfortable; but I lay waiting. I have always loved both day and night on shipboard, and am never fearful of anything, but now I was nervous about his icy air.

Suddenly a queer quivering ran under me, apparently the whole length of the ship. Startled by the very strangeness of the shivering motion, I sprang to the floor. All was quiet, and the master ship was plowing steadily on. With too perfect a trust in that mighty vessel, I again lay down.

Some one knocked at my door, and the voice of a friend said: "Come quickly to my cabin; an iceberg just passed our window; I know we have just struck one." Unbelieving, I followed to her stateroom, looked out of the window, saw nothing, sat down and talked, while my friend went on dressing. No confusion, no noise of any kind, one could believe no danger imminent. Our stewardess came and said she could learn nothing. Looking out into the companionway I saw heads appearing, asking questions from half closed doors. All sepulchrally still, no excitement. I sat down again.

My friend was by this time dressed; still her daughter and I talked on, Margaret pretending to eat a sandwich. Her hand shook so that the bread kept parting company from the chicken. Then I saw she was frightened, and for the first time I was, too, but why get dressed, as no one had given the slightest hint of any possible danger?

An officer's cap passed the door. I asked: "Is there an accident or danger of any kind?" "None, so far as I know," was his courteous answer, spoken quietly and most kindly. This same officer then entered a cabin a little distance down the companionway and, by this time distrustful of everything, I listened intently and distinctly heard: "We can keep the water out for a while."

Then, and not until then, did I realize the horror of an accident at sea. Now it was too late to dress; no time for a waist, but a coat and skirt were soon on; slippers were quicker than shoes; the stewardess put on our life preservers, and we were just ready when Mr. Roebling came to tell us he would take us to my friend's mother, who was waiting above.

We passed by the palm room, where two short hours before we had listened to a beautiful concert, just as one might sit in his own home. Never a realizing sense of being on the ocean, why should one not forget?—no motion, no noise of machinery, nothing suggestive of a ship. Happy, laughing men and women constantly passing up and down those broad, strong staircases, and the music went on, and the ship went on—nearer and nearer to its end. So short a life, so horrible a death for that great, great ship. What is a more stupendous work than a ship! The almost human piece of machinery, yet a helpless child, powerless in its struggle with an almighty sea, and the great boat sank, fragile as a rowboat.

How different are those staircases now! No laughing throng, but on either side stand quietly, bravely, the stewards, all equipped with the white, ghostly life preservers. Always the thing one tries not to see, even crossing a ferry. Now only pale faces, each form strapped about with those white bars. So gruesome a scene. We passed on. The awful good-byes. The quiet look of hope in the brave men's eyes as the wives were put into the lifeboats. Nothing escaped one at this fearful moment. We left from the sun deck, 50 or 80 feet above the water. Mr. Case and Mr. Roebling, brave American men, saw us to the lifeboat, made no effort to save themselves, but stepped back on deck. Later they went to an honored grave.

Sitting by me in the lifeboat were a mother and daughter. The mother had left a husband on the Titanic, and the daughter a father and husband, and while we were near the other boats these two stricken women would call out a name and ask: "Are you there?" "No" would come back the awful answer, but these brave women never lost courage, forgot their own sorrow, telling me to sit close to them to keep warm.

Now I began to wish for the warm velvet suit I left hanging in my cabin. I had thought of it for a minute, and then had quickly thrown on a lighter weight skirt. I knew the heavier one would make the life preserver less useful. Had I only known how calm the ocean was that night I would have felt that death was not so sure, and would have dressed for life rather than for the end. The life preservers helped to keep us warm, but the night was bitter cold, and it grew colder and colder, and just before dawn, the coldest, darkest hour of all, no help seemed possible.

As we put off from the Titanic never was a sky more brilliant, never have I seen so many falling stars. All tended to make those distress rockets that were sent up from the sinking ship look so small, so dull and futile. The brilliancy of the sky only intensified the blackness of the water, our utter loneliness on the sea.

The other boats had drifted away from us; we must wait now for dawn and what the day was to bring us we dared not even hope. To see if I could not make the night seem shorter, I tried to imagine myself again in Japan. We had made two strange night departures there, and I was unafraid, and this Atlantic now was calmer than the Inland sea had been at that time. This helped a while, but my hands were freezing cold, and I had to give up pretending and think of the dawn that must soon come.

Two rough-looking men had jumped into our lifeboat just as we were about to lower, and they kept striking matches, lighting cigars, until I feared we would have no matches left and might need them, so I asked them not to use any more, but they kept on. I do not know what they looked like. It was too dark to really distinguish features clearly, and when dawn brought the light it brought something so wonderful with it no one looked at anything else or any one else.

Some one asked: "What time is it?"

TO PRESERVE INDIAN TYPE.

Government Sends Sculptor to Western Reservations to Make Busts and Masks.

The National government has at last recognized the importance of preserving for future generations a true likeness of the old Indian type, now fast disappearing, and Frank Micka, a New York sculptor, has been sent to the Western Indian reservations to make busts and masks which will be placed in the United States National Museum at Washington.

Mr. Micka is in Winnebago, Neb., and is making studies of the very old Indians, as well as purer bloods of a younger age. For several months he has been among the Sioux in South Dakota, and after finishing his work among the Omahas and Winnebagoes, he will go to the Osages in Oklahoma, and thence to the Apaches and Navajos in New Mexico and Arizona. Altogether his work will require the greater part of a year before it is finished. The complete busts and masks will first be placed on exhibition at the San Francisco-Panama-Pacific Exposition, but their permanent home will be in the museum at Washington.

"The greatest obstacle that I have to overcome," said Mr. Micka, "is the superstition of the Indians, especially of the women. They seem to think if a likeness is made of them it means their death. So they will not pose for me without great persuasion—and pay.

"When I came to work on the children," continued Mr. Micka, "I realized that the government had not begun an instant before it was necessary to begin, if the true Indian type was to be preserved. The children are diseased almost beyond belief. Of the 200 children I examined there were only two who were good models. Practically all the others were suffering from disease.

"In a few generations the Indian race will be almost extinct, or at least the distinctive characteristics of their forefathers will have disappeared. Most of the present-day Indians bear the marks of civilization on their faces. The white man's way is removing the lines worn by the old Indian method of life."

CUTICURA OINTMENT HEALS BAD SORE ON LIMB

"I was coming up some steps when a board crushed under me and my right leg went through to the knee, and scraped the flesh off the bone just inside and below the knee. I neglected it for a day or two, then it began to hurt me pretty badly. I put balsam fir on to draw out the poison; when I had used it a week it hurt so badly that I changed to —— ointment. That made it smart and burn so badly that I couldn't use it any more. Then I began to use Cuticura Ointment for the sore. It stopped hurting and began healing right away. It was a bad looking sore but Cuticura Ointment healed it, and I had it so I couldn't sleep for two days and nights until I began using Cuticura Ointment.

"I have used all kinds of soap for washing my face, and always it would leave my face smarting. I had to keep a towel to stop the smart, no matter how expensive soap I used. I find at last in Cuticura Soap a soap that will clean my face and leave it smarting, and I do not have to use anything to ease it." (Signed) Mrs. M. E. Fenn, 805 Lafayette St., Wichita, Kan., May 6.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Send to "Cuticura," Dept. K.K., Boston, for sample of each, post-free.

PETITION WITHDRAWN.

Misunderstanding Regarding Opening of Waite's Wharf as Public Highway.

Application for Another Small Circus Tabled to Permit Investigation.

The Board of Aldermen had a short hearing, after its weekly meeting Thursday evening, on the petition to declare Waite's wharf a public highway. It developed that the notice sent to the owners and the plat made carried the road to the harbor. The wharf is only partly built up and it was the idea of some of the signers to have the road accepted and improved only as far as the dwellings extend, and not to take in what is called the wharf property. The mayor said the board could not condemn land for highway purposes, and it could act only on the petition before it, which carried the roadway to the water. The petitioners were given leave to withdraw, and can then present another petition to have that part which is built on taken.

There was a petition from S. Olson for repairs to Golden Hill street and the street commissioner was directed to make such repairs as are necessary. The application of Howe's Great London shows for a circus license on the Middleton lot, September 10, was laid on the table to await information from the chief of police. Mayor Boyle presided and all but Alderman Shepley were present.

The regular pay rolls were approved, as follows: Streets and highways, $2,462.08; police, $1,074.40; fire department, $547.24; city officers, $252.35; firemen in theatres, $13.

The bill of Thomas F. Keeher, for $4,667.50, being the fifth payment for the improvements at the beach, was approved.

The petition of Martha S. Saunders, administratrix on the estate of Sarah R. Saunders, for refunding of taxes on personal estate, was referred to the assessors.

The petition of Stephen S. Noy, for a gas lamp on Crofton place, was referred to the alderman from the Fourth ward, with power. The petition of Joseph G. Mellozo and others for a light on Fenner avenue was referred to the alderman from the Second ward, with power. An inquiry was made as to whether there was any money available for lights and the city clerk said there should be, as the Beach Association is to pay for the summer lights at the beach.

An application was in from Howe's Great London Shows for a circus license on the Middleton land, September 10. The city clerk said the chief of police had stated that he had heard that a pretty tough crowd is following this show. Inquiry was made as to the show and the deputy city clerk said the statement made was that it was a small show smaller than the last one here—only 14 cars. Some of the aldermen said it had been billed for three weeks as a big show. They thought it would be as well to hear what the chief had to say and the application was laid on the table to enable him to appear before the board.

A communication was received from S. Olson, which stated that the rains had caused a hole in the sidewalk on Golden Hill street, near No. 46, and the water had entered his cellar. He had spoken to the street commissioner about it and the commissioner had told him to fix it himself. The petitioner asked that the place be fixed at once, as the city is responsible if any one breaks a limb there, and the petitioner is not; neither does he do work for the city. The petition was referred to the street commissioner, with directions to have the place fixed.

A resolution was passed authorizing the city treasurer, in accordance with the act of the General Assembly of April 23 and the resolution of the Representative Council of June 20, to issue two notes, each for $10,000, one for one year and one for two years, from October 1, payable at the First National Bank, Boston, the proceeds to be used only for payment of the award for buildings and improvements at the beach.

Raymond H. Wetherell, who had applied for a license as a private detective, was present and renewed his application. The permit was granted, under the state law.

The board then went to the aldermanic chamber, to hold the hearing on the Waite's wharf petition. The petition was signed by Thomas F. Keeher and others and asked the city to condemn Waite's wharf as a public highway, after being continuously used as such. The required legal notices had been served by the city sergeant.

Mayor Boyle called upon any who favored the project, and as Mr. Keeher was present he was asked to speak first. Mr. Keeher said there appeared to be a misunderstanding about the petition. Personally he favored opening the road to the water, but Mr. Buckley, who had filled in the wharf, objected to this and desired it opened only as far as the road is settled.

Mayor Boyle said the aldermen could act only on the petition before it and the plat and notices called for opening to the harbor. Mr. Keeher said that about 300 feet was the extent now desired. He said he favored going to the harbor, but did not favor taking any man's land. He was asked if the road is used to the harbor and said not generally.

Mr. Buckley said that when he signed the petition he understood it was proposed to improve the wharf only as far as there are buildings, just as was done on Sisson's, Kinsley's and other wharves, the pier part of which is private property. He did not see why the wharf which he built, and which has a stone sea wall, should be made a public road any more than the wharf part of Commercial or Sullivan's wharves, or any other. He had built the wharf and filled it in.

Mr. Albro suggested that perhaps a deed could be given for that portion which was desired to have improved. Mayor Boyle said he had consulted the city solicitor, who held that the board could act only on the petition, the plat made therefrom and the notices served by the city sergeant, which did not limit the length but carried it to the harbor. The board has no authority to condemn land for highway purposes, as it has no money to pay for land taken. He suggested that the petitioners be given leave to withdraw, and they could later prepare another petition, covering that part of the wharf which it is proposed to have improved, and proceedings could again be begun. This seemed to suit those who were present and the board gave the petitioners leave to withdraw.

The board at 8:26 adjourned.

MONKEY ON A RAMPAGE.

A big monkey used by side show fakers demoralized the police and had the western part of Lancaster, Pa., in an uproar when it escaped from its owner. It made a raid on a grocery and scared a young college student who tried to capture it. The police were summoned, but the monkey charged them and they fled. Then it went into a back yard, where it tore a cat to pieces. Finally a small boy cornered it into a chicken pen, where it was captured.

NO ADVANCE IN GRADE.

Naval Officers Hereafter Retired by the Plucking Board Not to be Promoted.

Hereafter officers of the navy retired under the provisions of Sections 8 and 9 of the personnel act approved March 3, 1899, will be retired from the grade in which they are serving without an advance in rank, as has been the practice. These officers come before what is known as the "plucking board," and when selected for retirement the rank has been given as a sort of balm for their injured feelings and loss of the chance to reach still higher grades in the navy.

In all large navies of the world there is similar elimination due to the necessity of providing for a steady promotion of officers from the lower grades. In very few foreign navies has there been any great regard for individual rights, and thus far in the United States only a minority of those compulsorily retired have protested against the manner in which they were separated from the active work of the service. The majority of officers have acquiesced in the verdict of the board, notwithstanding their personal disappointment. The navy generally has confidence in the integrity and impartiality of the boards which have been called upon to select officers for retirement.

Those who are compulsorily retired make a sacrifice for which the Navy Department believes it is only just to recompense them. The career of the officer in the navy is ended, and the bonus of an extra grade with but slight increase in pay is not deemed unreasonable after from 25 to 35 years in the naval service. It is believed this additional grade has resulted in relieving the sense of grievance and disappointment of those who have been eliminated. However, Congress has adopted a provision which puts an end to this practice, and hereafter an officer retired by the elimination board will receive three-fourths the pay of the grade in the active service he is in when selected for retirement.

OLD RHYTHM AND RHYME.

They tell me new methods now govern the Muses,
The modes of expression have changed with the times;
That low is the rank of the poet who uses
The old fashioned verse with intentional rhymes.
And quite out of date, too, is rhythmical metre;
The critics declare it an insult to art.
But oh! the sweet swing of it, oh! the clear ring of it,
Oh! the great pulse of it, right from the heart,
Art or no art.

I sat by the side of that old poor, Ocean,
And counted the billows that broke on the rocks;
The tide lifted in with a rhythmical motion;
The sea gulls dipped downward in time-keeping flocks.
I watched while a giant wave gathered its forces,
And then on the gray granite precipice burst;
And I knew as I counted, while other waves mounted,
I knew the tenth billow would rhyme with the first.

And back in the woodland a little bird sang;
And, doubt it who will, yet those two sounds were rhyming,
As out o'er the hill tops they echoed and rang.

The Winds and the Trees fell to talking together;
And nothing they said was didactic or terse;
But everything spoken was told in unbroken
And beautiful rhyming and rhythmical verse.

So rhythm I hail it, though critics assail it,
And hold melting rhymes as an insult to art,
For oh! the sweet swing of it! oh! the dear ring of it,
Oh! the strong pulse of it, right from the heart,
Art or no art.

TEN PAGES.

ROOSEVELT ELECTORS IN REPUBLICAN COLUMNS.

In several states the situation regarding Republican electors is very serious, and Colonel Roosevelt will be a party to a colossal and revolting fraud upon the people, upon whose right to govern he insists with wearisome iteration, if he does not make it clear that no candidate for elector who intends to vote for him has any business to run as a Republican.

The situation in Pennsylvania is this. The state convention was controlled by the Roosevelt men and nominated Presidential electors, but it was a Republican convention and it nominated electors to vote for the candidate of the Republican party. It expected that Roosevelt would be the candidate of the party. It happens that he is not. He does not even claim to be, as he might have done if he had had himself nominated by a rump convention while the Republican convention was in progress.

Since the Pennsylvania state Republican convention was held Roosevelt has resigned from the Republican party and has been nominated for President by a convention representing a new party. A state convention of the Pennsylvania Progressives was held in the green room in the Congress Hotel in Chicago and chose delegates to the national Progressive convention, which adopted a platform and nominated Roosevelt and Johnson.

The men who intend to vote for this ticket have no more right to seek votes as Republicans than men who intend to vote for Wilson and Marshall. Chairman Hilles has addressed a circular letter to the Pennsylvania candidates for elector, asking them whether in the event of their election they intend to vote for Taft, and some of them have replied that they shall vote for Roosevelt and Johnson. If so, they have no more right in the Republican than in the Democratic column. Men nominated by the Pennsylvania Republican state convention were nominated to vote for the Republican candidate, and there is no doubt that Taft is that candidate.

Roosevelt owes it to himself as a man of honor, even if he had not made a specialty of the "square deal," the Ten Commandments and the higher morality, to insist that candidates for elector in his interest shall not pose as Republicans or Democrats.

PHYSICALLY DEFECTIVE CHILDREN.

This country has more doctors in proportion to the population than any other—probably several times as many. It is copiously supplied with free hospitals and dispensaries. From time to time the doctors complain that the profession is being ruined by the amount of free medical attendance. Besides all these provisions every city and probably every town has some arrangement for giving free medical attendance to those who need it and cannot or do not wish to pay for it. Most physicians are doing a good deal of free practice all the time—some of it from motives of charity and some because they cannot collect their bills.

Yet a report to the United States bureau of education by Dr. Wood, professor of physical education in the Teachers' College of Columbia University, estimates that 75 per cent of the school children in this country are physically defective. In Boston an enumeration indicates that 65 per cent are in need of medical attendance, but Dr. Wood thinks that for the whole country the percentage is higher. This is quite likely, for Boston might reasonably be expected to be in advance of many of the cities in looking after the children, and there is less done in the rural districts, though we may suppose that the health of children is usually better in the country.

Dr. Wood believes that 15,000,000 children in the United States ought to have medical attendance. To go into details, he thinks that nearly half a million have organic heart trouble, a million have or have had tuberculosis, a million have spinal curvature, flat foot or a minor deformity; a million have defective hearing, five million have defective sight, as many more suffer from malnutrition, a greater number have enlarged tonsils or similar trouble, and ten million have defective teeth. These figures show extreme indifference on the part of parents to the ailments of their children.

IN RETURN FOR AN APPETITE.

The value of an appetite and a good digestion is difficult to estimate and probably would be placed higher by some than by others. It would hardly do, therefore, to fix it arbitrarily at as high a figure as has the man of wealth who recently gave a large sum to the Johns Hopkins Hospital in expression of his gratitude for the service done him in restoring his appetite and renovating his digestive apparatus. A man with a million dollars may feel that the restoration of good digestion and a natural appetite is worth a large share of his wealth, whereas one with but a few thousands, or no money at all, at his command could hardly be expected to rate its value so highly. Most persons would probably be willing to give a round sum for recovery from any physical ill if they had the money, but the price they are willing to pay for such service must be limited by their ability to furnish the cash and not by their feeling of desire for recovery or gratitude at the regaining of health.

Good digestion and a good appetite are greatly to be desired, since no disarrangement of the natural working of the organs of the body perhaps creates more distress or makes the sufferer more miserable. The dyspeptic is to be pitied beyond the victims of many other diseases, as his condition colors all his views of life by the reaction of his physical distress upon his mental faculties. It is not strange, therefore, that this man who has made an unusual donation to the Baltimore hospital was willing to give so liberally to the institution or that he stipulated that the money should be devoted to the care and cure of others afflicted as he was. He showed not only gratitude for what had been done for him, but a desire that others should profit by the same service. It was a praiseworthy act on his part, whether or not he thereby fixed the value of good digestion and a good appetite.

LIFE IN THE CITY AND IN THE COUNTRY.

The advice that city folks should go out into the open, buy land in the country, and save a large percentage of their household expenses by the simpler life they would lead and by raising a good proportion of the food they would eat throughout the year, is being given with emphasis and by many people in these days. This may be timely in view of the high cost of living, but it is possible to carry it too far. Not all dwellers in the city are fitted for country life or could accommodate themselves to it readily. There are many who crave the more complex activities of the city and would not be content or successful anywhere else. Such persons obviously should not leave their present environment and try to adapt themselves to the country style of living. They would only make a failure and hinder rather than help the movement from the city to the country which is so much needed. On the other hand, there are in the cities many who crave the country way of living and would welcome a change if they could see how it could be brought about, but are afraid to try the experiment for fear they would not succeed and would be in worse condition than before.

The movement from the city to the country should be a matter of adjustment or selection by those who prefer the latter. Unhappily such an arrangement is not easily made because of the conditions of life, but if some way could be discovered to help those who really wish to live the life of the country, and to discourage those who evidently have no such desire from leaving the city, great benefit would result. It should be taken into consideration, however, that not all those who seek the country for the open-air life and the reduction of expenses by the raising of food products need to devote their whole time to that occupation. Many men are so situated in their business that it is possible for them to live in the country and work in the city, and devote their spare time to raising vegetables and other products which would reduce the cost of living materially. Such men ought to do this if they like the open-air life, and if they would do so they would find it economical, healthful and satisfying.

Washington is looking for a war which might involve all the maritime nations of the world, growing out of the Panama legislation. According to a report which reaches the Senate Department the directorate of the Suez canal has decided to reduce rates through that waterway, and in official circles this notice is regarded as the first retaliatory step against the free tolls provision for American ships through the Panama canal. This change of rates brings the Suez tolls down to the maximum figures prescribed for vessels passing through the Panama cut.

The agreement on the parcels post provision of the postoffice appropriation bill reached by the conferees provides for the zone system proposed by Senator Bourne and fixes 15 cents as the rate for local delivery, increasing according to weight of package and distance transported, the maximum charge being $1.32 for carrying 11 pounds more than 1,800 miles. The Senate provision, requiring newspapers to publish semi-annually a list of stockholders, was adopted, and another added, to require every daily newspaper to print a statement of its average daily circulation. The bill as agreed upon by the committee will be passed by both houses and become a law.

The charges made by Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania, that Theodore Roosevelt wrote his letter of protest against the acceptance of the Standard Oil contribution to his campaign in 1904 when he knew that the $100,000 contribution, made with his knowledge, had been spent, is of so serious a nature that mere denial by the colonel will not satisfy the public.

Colonel Roosevelt's latest is to call Senator Boies Penrose of Pennsylvania "a cuttlefish which 'squirts ink' in the hope of escaping an enemy it is afraid to fight." His language is picturesque, to say the least. Senator Penrose does not show any signs of being afraid, but is really forcing the fighting against the Progressive candidate.

Congress is agreeing upon the appropriation bills, which are being rushed through in record-breaking time, and there is every prospect now that an adjournment will be reached Saturday, even if the legislative day is carried over into Sunday.

The naval appropriation bill, embodying a provision for one battleship, to cost not more than $15,000,000 which has finally received the President's signature, carries an aggregate of $123,202,770.

The Presidential campaign is on with a rush, and there is every indication that it will be as bitter and personal as any which has preceded it.

MONTAUK'S HOPE DISPELLED.

Various schemes to make of Long Island's eastern end something more than nature and the public needs have seemed to intend have at different periods been proposed, discussed and allowed to fade from notice. Rosy railroad projects which involved the island as a natural land route for commerce between New York and the East have budded, blossomed and died. It is not necessary to recount them or the names of the masters of transportation who have believed in them and sought to nourish a great idea and secure public co-operation in their plans.

Of late the plan of having ocean passengers land near Montauk Point and of making a great port for trans-Atlantic shipments has occupied the minds of some capitalists who thought they foresaw great advantages in a certain number of hours gained in the time between New York, Liverpool and the other foreign ports. A great and expensive breakwater at Montauk Point was a part of the necessary equipment and up to the government's engineer was carried this part of the project. That matter-of-fact individual decides that the proposed expensive breakwater would not pay.

It's a prosaic way to dispense with such brilliant expectations, but business is both prosaic and cold. It is found that there is no possibility of making an important port at Montauk. Commerce by sea and land can find its terminal points and it refuses to be directed to places not of its own choosing. There is a difference between making more easy the roads for traffic by sea and land and an attempt to change natural terminals. And the port of New York refuses to be extended to Montauk Point as this now discredited idea sought to extend it.

SHAME ON PERKINS AND MUNSEY.

[Hartford Times.]

There is such a thing as pinching the pennies and the dollars too tightly when in the show business. If George W. Perkins and Frank A. Munsey propose to take in "gate money" wherever the big Bull Moose is placed on exhibition, they will find that the public will soon "get on" to their excess of thrift and that their enterprise will not prosper.

In Providence entrance fees were charged at the doors of two halls where the "foremost man" was billed to make speeches. These halls not being enormously large, there was no difficulty in filling them. But it was a poor policy, nevertheless. No man who is running for the Presidency can afford to permit tickets to be sold for seats on any occasion when he is the principal attraction. That is merely commercial and mercenary—we were almost inclined to permit a harsher adjective.

As seats in national nominating conventions are always sold to some extent by those who have obtained them gratis it did not seem such bad form for Roosevelt & Co. to pay the expenses of their national convention by selling gallery space to the people who wanted it. But the people who want to see the third-term scheme "beaten to a frazzle" could ask for no better indication that such will be its fate than the way T. R.'s public appearances in Providence were managed.

THE PLAIN PEOPLE GROWING WISE.

[Washington Star.]

Another evidence that the wisdom of the plain people is greater than it used to be is the fact that no modern voter takes a solemn obligation to let his whiskers grow until his favorite candidate gets elected.

Special Committee to Investigate Charges Against Warden McCusker.

Inquiry into Shooting of Sergeant at Rumford Range—New Gas Meter System in Providence.

A special committee of the State Board of Charities and Corrections, including George R. Lawton of Tiverton, Horace F. Horton of Cranston, Harry H. Shepard of Bristol and Frederick I. Dana of Charlestown, will investigate the charges which have been made against James F. McCusker, warden of the state prison. The committee will meet next Monday. It was determined, according to the chairman, to have a meeting of the State Board of Charities following the investigation, "to hear any charges that have been made or may be made against Warden McCusker."

Inquiry into the death of Sergeant Evan Romig, U. S. A., on the state rifle range Wednesday, has disclosed the fact, it is said, that the revolver did not slip from the hand of Musician Henry Duby of Company E, First Light Infantry, as he asserted at the time, but that it was deflected by him accidentally and the bullet, fired wild, struck the sergeant. This turn in the case came about, following a searching investigation into the circumstances of the affair. This investigation was made all the more searching because of the fact that officers who were thoroughly familiar with firearms of all kinds declared that it would have been impossible for a man to be shot in the neck in the way it was claimed to have happened. Captain Homer G. Grant, U. S. A., stationed at Fort Adams, was sent to Providence by Brigadier General Tasker H. Bliss, commander of the Department of the East, to represent him in the official government investigation of the circumstances of the death. This was made necessary because of the fact that Sergeant Romig was on detached service with the battery, and therefore under no commander except the division commander. The investigation was to determine whether he met his death in the line of duty.

October 1 the Providence Gas Company will adopt the plan known as the "continuous meter reading system," already used by other large companies. According to this system the bill will be dated the day the meter is read and delivered in from three to five days thereafter. The discount period will expire 15 days from the date of the bill and not uniformly on the tenth of each month, as at present. The discount will be 10 cents per 1,000 cubic feet of gas consumed to consumers who pay within 15 days of the date of the bills, making the net price to such 85 cents per 1,000 cubic feet. The large consumers, such as the state, city and some large manufaturing concerns, will benefit by the further reduction of one cent per 1,000 cubic feet for each million cubic feet of gas used during the year. The city will probably pay about 77 cents for its gas and the state about 75 cents, under this ruling.

The books of the tax assessors of Woonsocket, which were signed yesterday by the full board, show that the city's total increase in valuation over last year is $1,840,700. The total of land is $6,370,100, and that of buildings $12,947,750, making a real estate valuation of $19,317,850, an increase in real estate valuation of $408,950 over last year. The Assessors found tangible personal property to the amount of $5,212,800, and intangible personal property amounting to $1,093,250, making a total, tangible and intangible of $6,205,050, and showing an increase over the 1911 record of $1,431,750. The city will receive this year in taxes $328,403.45 on real estate, $88,617.60 on tangible personal property, making a total of $421,354.05, an increase of $17,209.65. The reduction on the state tax which Woonsocket will pay under the new laws is $23,900, making a net gain in money from taxation, obtained and saved, of $40,209.65. The city's tax on real estate and tangible personal property is $1.70 per hundred and under the law it is 40 cents per hundred on intangible personal property. The city's total tax valuation is now $25,613,900.

The State Board of Control and Supply has only $156,825.04 left with which to maintain the state institutions and pay the salaries of employes connected with them during the remainder of the year. This state of affairs is due to the fact that the disbursements of the State Board of Charities and Corrections for the first six months of this year were $75,341.52 greater than last year during the same period, according to a report given out by Gilbert R. Parker, secretary of the State Board of Control and Supply. The statement says that of the total money available for the first six months, which was $433,543.89, the Charities board spent in the first six months $306,718.85. This includes a deficit of $50,507.61 for 1911. The balance turned over to the State Board of Control and Supply when it took up its work July 1 was $126,825.04. This amount will be increased by about $30,000, which is the estimated income for that period. This will make the total amount available for six months $156,825.04, which means that every expense which may be incurred, including the pay roll, salaries of probation officer and Charities Board, for the period must be met from these funds. The list of articles turned over to the new board when it took control included about 800 tons of coal and a quantity of groceries which had been purchased. The whole was valued approximately at $3,500 and was included in the expenditures of the first six months.

Rhode Island will be represented at the sixty-eighth annual session of the National Council, Order of United American Mechanics, at Gettysburg next week by one of the largest delegations which ever attended an annual convention of the order outside of the state. More than 50 members from the State Council will attend, several of them being accompanied by their wives. Included in the party will be National Vice Councillor O. C. Barrows of Providence, who will be elected head of the order; ex-National Councillor Amasa F. Bicknell of Woonsocket, State Councillor Edwin S. Burlingham, ex-State Councillors Henry H. Potter of Scituate, George F. Ordway and Asa Burlingame of Providence. The party will leave Sunday night by boat to New York and thence to Gettysburg. The Rhode Island delegation will be accompanied by practically the entire official delegation from New England to the National Council. The Rhode Island party with the additions from Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Connecticut, will number between 75 and 100 and at New York will be joined by a portion of the New York and New Jersey delegations.

Congressman Utter left Washington Thursday for Rhode Island, having concluded his Congressional duties for the season. Monday he will begin active campaigning for President Taft's re-election. He will open the Vermont campaign, spending the entire week in that state, delivering Taft speeches. From Vermont Congressman Utter will go to Maine, where another week will be spent in the interest of the Republican party. He was active during the campaign which resulted in so many Taft victories in New England during the pre-convention campaign, for which he received the special thanks of the President. It is expected that he will be pressed into almost constant service during the next two months by Chairman Hilles of the Republican national committee, who holds Mr. Utter's ability as a political speaker in high regard.

The Barrington Centre postoffice, the principal of the three in the town of Barrington, will be known after October 1, by direction of the Postoffice Department at Washington, as plain Barrington. A new commission to the postmaster was necessary, for the old office under a new name, and this has been received by Postmaster Charles H. Martin. The change is effected because of the confusion resulting from the postoffice being for 40 years past known as Barrington Centre, while the New Haven railroad station, which is only 60 feet distant, was known officially as Barrington station. In the handling of mails and express between the two offices with different names much confusion resulted and it was decided by Barrington residents to petition for a change in name of the postoffice, which was readily granted.

The resignation of Milton H. Bronsdon, chief engineer of the Rhode Island Company, is announced. He has fixed September 1 as the date of his retirement from electric railway service in Rhode Island and his intention is to locate in Los Angeles.

STRONG STAND BY WILLIAMS.

In the national lawn tennis tournament this morning Maurice E. McLoughlin, the California expert, won his match in the sixth round, defeating R. N. Williams, Jr., a new-comer in American tennis this year, in a five-set match. Williams made his first appearance before a Newport grand stand gathering, and as they say in sporting circles "made good" with the spectators. There was a regular championship attendance, with every point of advantage occupied and many in the rear of the seats finding some little satisfaction in an occasional glimpse of the players. Both grand stands had every seat occupied and there were hundreds on the other sides of the courts and in the piazzas and gallery of the court tennis building.

It was a match which brought out round after round of applause as the players repeatedly made an almost impossible get and returned the ball out of the reach of the man on the other side of the net. Some of the plays were wonderful and there were many lively rallies and the cleverest sort of tennis. At times Williams clearly outplayed his opponent, but was often nervous. After he had tied the score in the fourth set he practically lost his nerve and made errors repeatedly, with double faults at critical points. He had remarkable recuperative powers and often made an ace on service after one or two double faults.

The second set was sharply contested, Williams showing improvement and making his strokes tell repeatedly as passes. McLoughlin was not as steady as in the first, and not able to pass Williams as he had before. Five of the 11 games went to deuce, McLoughlin winning four and Williams one. Williams handled McLoughlin's service well, taking one game entirely on returns of the service for passes. The set went to Williams, 7-5. Williams made 21 places and one ace in service, and scored on 11 nets, 15 outs and four double faults. McLoughlin scored 10 places and four aces, and on 14 nets and 12 outs. The score by points:

Williams
3 4 5 3 4 4 1 4 4 6 4 4—52—7

McLoughlin
7 2 7 5 1 2 4 6 2 8 1 2—47—5

McLoughlin played a consistent game throughout. He was not able to make his service as effective as usual against Williams, and had little opportunity for smashing, but when the opportunity came he smashed as of old. He was better at the end and had the fifth set well in hand from the start, forcing his opponent to make outs or nets on his hard drives and sharp returns.

Williams started the service and McLoughlin won the game on outs, a net and a double fault by Williams. He took the second on his service, his cross-court strokes standing him in good stead. The set was run through quickly, with no deuce games, McLoughlin taking it, 6-4, McLoughlin scored five places, five aces, 8 opponent's nets, 11 opponent's outs and 3 opponent's double faults. Williams scored five places, 1 ace, 8 opponent's nets and 7 opponent's outs. The point score was as follows:

McLoughlin 4 4 2 4 2 2 2 4 4 4-32-6
Williams 2 1 4 2 4 4 4 0 2 0-23-4

In the third set the first four games were won on service the next four against the service, and McLoughlin pulled out the ninth and tenth on accurate placing. Williams played at times more brilliantly than his opponent, some of his returns of difficult balls being remarkable. He, however, was not equal to McLoughlin. In the tenth game the latter won out after deuce had been called twice, making the two points on aces on service, the score being 6-4. In this set McLoughlin made 19 places and two aces and counted 5 points on opponent's nets and 10 on outs. Williams scored eight places and one ace, and on 8 nets, 7 outs and 3 double faults. The point score is as follows:

McLoughlin 0 4 1 4 4 1 4 1 4 6—29—6
Williams 4 2 4 0 1 4 2 4 1 4—26—4

After the rest of 10 minutes Williams came back in better condition than McLoughlin and at once started in with three games to his credit. McLoughlin took the next five, deuce games; then Williams won, and McLoughlin took the next, his last in this set, Williams running out in the eighth and ninth by fine placing. This set abounded in excellent tennis, long rallies and difficult returns, Williams having the better of the argument. His placing was wonderful. It was a driving game, with little lobbing, and both shared in the honors, Williams receiving the most applause for his long drives to the far corners. He was more accurate than he had been at any time. Williams scored 10 places and three aces on service, while McLoughlin made eight points on places and one service ace. The points:

Williams 4 6 4 3 4 4 2 6 4—37—6
McLoughlin 0 4 2 6 2 4 4 2—29—3

Williams did not hold out in the eighth set. He was nervous apparently and unable to control the ball; made a number of double faults and netted and outed frequently. McLoughlin played carefully throughout and was able to pass frequently. Williams won the third, sixth and eighth, the first on McLoughlin's service and the last two on his own. With the score 5-3 in his favor McLoughlin ran out the set and match with a love game, the score being 6-3. The points were as follows:

McLoughlin 5 4 1 4 6 3 4 3 4-34-6
Williams 3 1 4 0 4 5 1 5 0-23-3

While this match was on the three other contests were being decided. W. J. Clothier easily disposed of R. D. Little. The first set was close, going to 7-5 before Clothier won, but in the second he outplayed Little at all points and won with a love game. He continued his brilliant work in the third, losing only one game. Karl H. Behr and G. M. Church had an interesting contest, Behr was easily the better and won in straight sets, allowing only two games each in the first and second and none in the third. W. M. Washburn and Wallace F. Johnson started later and were still playing when the McLoughlin-Williams match was ended, many of the spectators remaining to see the finish. Four sets were necessary before Johnson won, Washburn taking the third.

The summary of the morning's play is as follows:

All Comers' Singles, Sixth Round.

M. E. McLoughlin beat R. N. Williams, Jr., 6-4, 5-7, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3.

W. J. Clothier beat R. D. Little, 7-5, 6-0, 6-1.

Karl H. Behr beat George M. Church, 6-2, 6-2, 6-0.

Wallace F. Johnson beat W. M. Washburn, 3-6, 6-2, 3-6, 6-3, 6-3.

In the semi-finals Saturday McLoughlin will be pitted against Clothier and Behr will meet Johnson. The match between Clothier and McLoughlin will be crucial test of the tournament, the victor being likely to win also in the finals Monday.

—The Long wharf pavement was flooded this morning, and was a "mess" for some time. What was needed in addition to the flooding was enough men to clean the pavement while the water was on and clear the surplus water.

—The Peleg Bryer building on Broadway is to have a modern store front, work having been begun this morning. It will be a good deal of a change, since the heavy stone work of generations will need to be torn away below and supported above.

—Mr. Ray Barker, son of Colonel A. A. Barker, is at home from Cuba on a visit. He rather favors the insurrectionists of the island, since he says that if he was in their place he would be one of them, as the conditions favor the anti-government followers.

—A number of big steam yachts have arrived since Thursday, among them the North Star, Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt; the Glencairn, Mr. Ross; the Huma, Mr. W. B. Densmore, and the Aloha, Mr. A. C. James. Mr. Harold Vanderbilt also came in with schooner Vagrant.

—Several boats would not have taken the automobiles and carriages which appeared to take the 4 P. M. boat to Jamestown Thursday. When all that could be accommodated were stowed away there was still a line in waiting which reached up Ferry wharf and Market square nearly to Thames street.

—The dining hall at the beach on the occasion of Mrs. Belmont's entertainment there next Tuesday night will be manned exclusively by women waiters, at Mrs. Belmont's request. They will all be attired in white and the men who usually work there with the women will be given an evening off.

—The torpedo boats being in, the Trojans will have a game Saturday with a team made up from the torpedo boat flotilla. Several of the teams have had games since the boats were in and they should be in good condition. For Sunday the Olneyville team has been secured. June 23 they played the Trojans for 12 innings, the locals winning out 2 to 1.

—Nine graduates of the class of 1897, Rogers High School, at the Miantonomi Club Thursday evening, enjoyed the banquet especially prepared for them. After the feasting they gathered in a group in the smoking room of the club and for a long time talked over bygone days, also discussing matters which are in the limelight at present.

BATTLE EFFICIENCY PENNANTS.

Presented to the Delaware at Hampton Roads and the Preston Here.

Chief Petty Officers of the Latter Hold Reception for Their Fellows of the Destroyer Flotilla.

At 11 o'clock this morning the battle efficiency pennants for the past year's record were raised on battleship Delaware at Hampton Roads and on torpedo boat destroyer Preston in the outer harbor here. The two ships have won the distinction of making the best showing in target practice and engineering competitions in their respective classes.

Acting Secretary of the Navy Beekman Winthrop, Engineer-in-Chief H. T. Cone and Lieutenant Commander T. T. Craven, director of target practice and engineering, were present at the battleship function and the President sent a letter of congratulation to the nine officers of the big ship who are credited with being most responsible for the success. The function in this harbor was of course of lesser magnitude, but there was a letter from Washington and the chief petty officers of the Preston held a reception on their craft, to which were invited the chief petty officers of the destroyer flotilla. Of course the size of the craft precluded a larger gathering.

These pennants are flown from a vessel for the ensuing year, are greatly cherished by the crews of the winning craft and coveted by those of other boats, for it makes the vessels marked ships, to be polnid at by all others as manned by the best crews.

Destroyer Stringham sailed at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon for Annapolis, after coaling at Melville. The Stringham is now on special duty as an experimental wireless ship, a work formerly conducted by the scout cruisers.

While in port this week the destroyers are preparing for their coming target practice with the ping pong attachments to their guns, coaling and oiling ships from the coaling depot at Melville and making general repairs. The boats have had a pretty strenuous summer in these waters and at the present rate of pushing them in first one drill and then another they will be worn out and ready for the scrap heap before the public becomes accustomed to their names.

The Monaghan having burned out her sending apparatus on her wireless is out today, testing the repairs which have been made.

The Drayton left early this morning for Melville, to fill her tanks with oil.

The Terry has been at Melville two days and this afternoon a diving party was sent up to go over her bottom.

The telephone cable between the Torpedo Station and Rose Island has again been carried away by one of the destroyers at anchor in the outer harbor.

TO WATER HORSES ON THE OCEAN DRIVE.

Appreciating the necessity of a watering place for horses used on public conveyances going around the long Ocean Drive, the Newport Humane Research Club has obtained permission from the street commissioner and the president of the Newport Water Works Company to use water from a stand pipe, and have selected the one nearest Castle Hill on the drive. It has stationed a man there during the hours from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m., with two pails, so that if a driver wishes to hasten his step he may assist. This man will keep a record of the horses benefitted and it is the earnest desire of the club that passengers insist that the horses be given the privilege of refreshing themselves with water, even if they do not take it.

PROMOTING MONEY INTERESTS.

Protest Against Knox and His Policy Toward Nicaragua.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 23.—Francis Altschul, American representative of the Liberal party of Nicaragua, and Angel Aguarte, formerly minister plenipotentiary from Nicaragua to the United States, left here last night for Washington prepared, as the former said, to furnish proofs that Secretary of State Knox, by his present policy toward Nicaragua, is seeking to promote the interests of Wall Street. Altschul declared that troops were being sent to Nicaragua not for protection of American interests, whom he said are protected whatever government might be in power, but to enforce the policy of Secretary Knox to aid the money interests.

HAY TREATY VIOLATED.

Canada's Protest Against American Panama Bill Being Prepared.

OTTAWA, Ontario, Aug. 23.—Canada's protest against the American Panama bill is in course of preparation here. It will be merged with that which Great Britain is expected to make through Ambassador Bryce. The vital principle of Canadian objection is that the bill is a violation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, particularly the coastwise shipping provision. An additional point emphasized is that Canada's inland canals, upon which $100,000,000 has been spent, are free to the shipping of the United States.

PROBABLE FILIBUSTERS.

Six Men, Equipped With Ammunition, Arrested at Elcajon.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Aug. 23.—Six men, equipped with eight rifles, two carbines, 1,000 rounds of ammunition and eight empty bombs, were arrested by the police at Elcajon, a suburb, and are in jail here.

Elcajon is only a few miles from the Mexican line and word had been sent to the commandant at Fort Rosecrans that the six men probably were filibusters, who intended to cross into Lower California to take a hand in the Mexican revolution. San Diego police, however, fearing that their presence meant a recrudescence of the trouble resulting from the attempt several months ago to expel Industrial Workers of the World from this city, did not wait for the military to act. Two of the men arrested had figured in the Industrial Workers' campaign in San Diego.

A MAN AND HIS WAGE.

[Troy Standard Press.]

There is now in circulation in this country of legal tender, commonly denominated as money, upwards of three billions, two hundred and a quarter millions, one hundred and eighty-two thousands and some odd hundred dollars.

It would seem as though that amount, if distributed with wisdom and equity amongst the people, would be sufficient to afford a living capital to all. And yet, according to the careful and competent compilation of statistics by Professor Scott Neering of the University of Pennsylvania, not more than 10 per cent of the industrial wage workers of the United States earn over $1,000 a year. Half of them make less than $500 a year. Hardly one woman in the industries earns $1,000 a year, only two per cent as much as $760 a year, and three-fourths of all women so employed make less than $400 a year.

Taking the highly-paid trades, it is found that more than half get less than $18 a week. Of the jewelers, 47 per cent exceed that income; boot and shoe workers, 42 per cent; foundrymen and machinists, 32 per cent; papermakers, 11 per cent; furniture hands, 17 per cent; leathermakers, 16 per cent. All but these percentages earn less than $2.50 a day, or less than $780 a year. And those are skilled trades.

What's wrong? We know, or should know from our own experiences, if we have to labor for living, what we are assured of by the government labor bureau, that $900 is the least amount for which an American wage-earner can maintain his efficiency under present cost of living.

And yet, we have reliable figures, based upon the most careful and exhaustive research, to prove that the best proportion of our wage earners are not getting the $900. Not in the richest country, of the richest age in all the history of the world.

SANG THE DOXOLOGY.

Wayin Which Press Gallery Celebrated Close of a Former Long Session.

Senator Bankhead's Humor—Aken Would Stop Printing the Congressional Record.

[Washington correspondence of The News.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—Years ago, before the flood—Johnstown flood—there was a session of Congress which lasted until the first of October. Then as now there had been a great sham battle over the tariff between a Democratic House and a Republican Senate. Then, however, the Republican Senate had no insurgents, and so the tariff bills were not sent to the then Democratic President. The President did not figure in the great fight, which reminds me of the recent contest between the "reds" and "blues" in the vicinity of New York, another great sham battle with generals, colonels, majors, staff officers and regulars and militia figuring in the "war game."

What I started to say was that when the celebrated session came to an end the newspaper men in the press gallery of the house broke forth in that well known hymn, "Praise God, From Whom All Blessings Flow." It struck a responsive chord among the members on the floor, and they slopped in their mad career for the doors long enough to join in the hymn. The same feeling applies in regard to the second session of the Sixty-second congress.

Discussing one of many vetoes, Congressman Burke of Pennsylvania remarked: "Now, as bearing upon the question as to whether there is an evil in the inherent veto power over the will of the majority, 150 men in the Baltimore convention recently exercised the veto power after a majority of the Democrats of the United States had nominated Champ Clark for President of the United States."

And Champ said never a word.

During a debate in the House on a veto message Minority Leader Mann gave forth this opinion: "At this time, considering the condition of the country concerning politics, it ought to be easy to adopt unanimously, without a dissenting voice, an amendment to the constitution fixing the Presidential term at six years and making any person holding the office forever after ineligible for another term."

And Chairman Fitzgerald, second in command on the Democratic side, jocosely remarked: "After the action of the Republicans in helping to pass the tariff bills over the President's veto, it might be possible. If they would study the Democratic platform a little more closely, they would help us put through our entire program."

Champ Clark once expressed his surprise because Senator Penrose had a sense of humor, saying that he would have expected as much from a graven image. And so it was in regard to Senator Bankhead of Alabama. He was speaking on a bill he wanted passed for a power plant in Alabama. Speaking of power, he mentioned wind and added, "I have sometimes thought that if we would turn a little of this wind that I have observed in this chamber into that industry we would have an inexhaustible supply for motive power."

The Senate was so surprised at this little jokelet coming from Bankhead that it actually laughed.

Senator Reed of Missouri pulled an old bill on John Sharp Williams one day in the Senate which had been introduced in the House, and then accused him of changing his mind. It didn't faze John Sharp in the least. "So far from its being difficult for me to change my opinion," said the Mississippi senator, "I find that it is rather difficult to keep from changing it too often as I grow older and learn more."

They refused to publish Congressman Akin's contribution to the Congressional Record, and he turned around, like many another, and said it was a "no account paper anyhow." "And let me say further of the Congressional Record," said the New York man, "the sooner it dies the better. It is a needless expense. It has a limited circulation and is very seldom read unless some man is harpooned. It is the cemetery of blasted hopes and shrouded ambitions, of half baked thoughts and hot air bunk. This Congressional Record is a misrepresentation. It is a fake. The speeches made on the floor are revised and revamped and fixed up by each member to suit himself. Why fool the public any longer?"

Congressman Kinkead of New Jersey in a controversy with J. Hampton Moore of Pennsylvania mentioned that Moore was born in New Jersey. "Is that an apology or a charge?" asked Burke of Pennsylvania, knowing the rivalry of the two states bordering on the Delaware.

HERE AT HOME.

Newport Citizens Gladly Testify and Confidently Recommend Doan's Kidney Pills.

It is testimony like the following that has placed Doan's Kidney Pills so far above competitors. When people right here at home raise their voice in praise there is no room left for doubt. Read the public statement of a Newport citizen:

W. H. Ackers, 7 Farewell St., Newport, R. I., says: "My kidneys were weak and the kidney secretions were too frequent in passage and contained sediment. There were pains through my sides and loins and I felt badly in every way. I finally used Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Wright & Hay's Drug Store, and I was soon free from kidney complaint."

The above statement must carry conviction to the mind of every reader. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mr. Ackers had—the remedy backed by home testimony. 50c all stores. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

VICTIM OF HEART DISEASE.

Western Pacific Operator at Belden, Cal., Dies While at His Key.

OROVILLE, Cal., Aug. 23.—F. R. Sinclair, Western Pacific operator at Belden, 55 miles from here, sat at his key dead of heart disease yesterday, while the Oroville despatcher tried frantically to "raise" Belden to transmit despatches that would prevent a train collision. Persistent calling over the wire brought no response, nor was the telephone answered. Then the Oroville despatcher telephoned to citizens in Belden and they hurried to the station and found the operator dead. Incoming trains were flagged until an operator could be sent to the town.

TRAIN ROBBER WOUNDED.

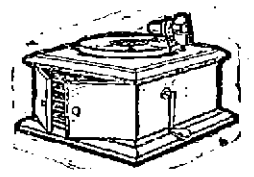

Unidentified Bandit Who Rifled Union Pacific Cars Captured.

TOPEKA, Kansas, Aug. 23.—An unidentified robber who boarded a Union Pacific train at Kansas City last night, bound and gagged three mail clerks and rifled all the registered mail, was captured here after he was fatally wounded by a bullet from his own revolver. The train was the west-bound St. Louis-Colorado Limited, which left Kansas City at 10:15 o'clock. After rifling the mail car the robber left it at Lawrence and boarded a Pullman on the same train, robbing the passengers as he passed through. When the train entered the Topeka yards Conductor Smith attacked the robber. In the scuffle that followed the bandit's revolver was discharged and a bullet entered his heart. All the stolen mail was found in his grip.

The marriage of Miss Anna Rossiter Koues, daughter of Mr. George Ellsworth Koues, to Mr. William Greene Roelker, son of the late William G. Roelker, took place Thursday afternoon at the residence of the bride's father, in New York. Rev. Endicott Peabody officated.

The bride wore a white satin gown trimmed with Spanish lace and with court train, and her tulle veil was held by a spray of orange blossoms. She carried white roses and lilies of the valley. The attendants, Miss Helen Koues, sister of the bride, and Miss Eleanor Roelker, the bridegroom's sister, were in white chiffon, were white hats faced with black and carried showers bouquets of purple asters. Mr. Frederick Schenck, Harvard 1909, a classmate of the bridegroom, was best man.

Miss Mary Parmly Koues and Mrs. Alanson Gray, sisters of the bride, received the guests. As the bride was in mourning for her mother, who died a year ago, there were only a few for the reception.

After a yachting trip Mr. and Mrs. Roelker will spend a few days on the ancestral Roelker estate at East Greenwich, where they will live permanently. Later they will leave for a motor trip of several months in Europe.

MAYOR AND CHIEF NOT TALKING.

will be put in legal shape before it is given to you.

We shall write you letters regularly as the work proceeds, telling you of the places patrolled and their patronage. When we have the evidence in convict, that fact will also be written to you, and all these letters will be given to the press on the day that they are mailed to you. We have in our files a list of disorderly resorts which we have been some time in preparing, but we should appreciate it if you would communicate to us any places that you might consider suspicious. The part of your letter that is only a surmise we would, of course, treat as confidential and not publish. In addition, if our investigations give us reason to believe that any employe of the city either frequents a disorderly place, or is connected in any way with one, or is himself drunk or disorderly, we will endeavor to reduce that belief to fact and communicate the latter to you, with the evidence thereof, in order that you may take the proper disciplinary steps.

We feel sure that you will appreciate that the work we are undertaking will assist you and the police department in grappling with this problem, that with all their other duties they cannot follow up in the systematic way that we can, as we are devoting our whole time to it.

Knowing that your intimate acquaintance with our city and your long experience in its government places you in an exceptional position to assist us, we would appreciate a prompt reply from you and would welcome any suggestions that you may make.

Yours very truly,
Law Enforcement League of the City of Newport.

August 22, 1912.

Mr. James R. Crowley, Chief of Police, Newport, R. I.

Dear Sir: We enclose you a copy of letter mailed today to His Honor the mayor, which explains itself. We can only add that we wish to co-operate in every way possible with your department in order that the ends contemplated may be carried out.

Our organization is to be a permanent one and does not have for its object the temporary closing of these resorts, to be opened again later, but it intends to drive them from the city for good, and as soon as any of them or others re-appear we shall follow them up and close them. In this we know that we shall have your hearty co-operation and will welcome from you any suggestions in which we can co-operate with your department either in getting evidence or in patrolling suspected places.

Yours very truly,
Law Enforcement League of Newport

Secretary.

BOTH SIDES DID SOME STRIKING.

Court Thinks Each Party in Clavers-Baggett Assault Case to Blame, and Discharges Defendant.

In the district court this morning the case against Herman B. Clavers for assault on Patrick J. Baggett on the night of July 21 was heard, and Clavers was discharged. The alleged assault took place near Brandt's fence on Van Zandt avenue.

Baggett, who is about 60 years old, said he was waiting in the darkness for his daughter, whom he had instructed to come home early that night. Clavers and a companion named Hansen came along and trouble began. Baggett says Clavers struck him without the least provocation.

Clavers, on the other hand, said Baggett took offense when he stopped to see who it was crouching behind the fence, and struck him a blow with a cane, across the legs. Both men did some striking, according to the testimony, Baggett declaring to Clavers, "I'm 60 and you're 45. Come back and have it out!"

The court said that, judging from the testimony, both parties were to blame, but he would discharge the defendant.

ENGLISH PREJUDICE AGAINST GREEN CORN GIVING WAY.

The green corn season has opened in England and inquiry shws that English prejudice thereto is at last giving way. Corn on the cob has found its way to the British dinner table. Restaurant proprietors say that never before has there been such a demand for corn on the cob. Devotees of the delicacy are divided into two camps, the consistent and the conventional. The first frankly eat from the cob; the second scrape the kernels off with a knife.

It is undoubtedly a great triumph to have penetrated stubborn insular prejudice in this respect. It took six days this summer to persuade one Englishman to try a glass of iced coffee. When he finally consented and made the desperate venture of a first sip, he drank the whole glass and called for another.

In the Savoy Hotel in London the head waiter and three assistants were observed to stand in utter amazement to see an American pour a pot of tea over ice in a glass.

NEW YORK LETTER.

Great Food Department Stores Planned to Reduce Cost of Living.

Wall Street Loses Unique Financier —$50,000 Flood of Wines—Music-less Theatres.

(Correspondence of The News.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—Plans are now under way here which will not only revolutionize many established sales methods, but provide this city with a series of stores unique in its commercial development or for that matter, the whole country. These plans propose nothing less than the establishment of great food department stores, handling nothing but edibles of every kind and these in enormous quantities, by which it is expected that a saving of from $40,000,000 to $120,000,000 can be effected annually in the amount spent for food in this city alone. Such stores as those are now recommended by the food investigating committee, which has been studying the whole problem of the high cost of living in an effort to bring about a quick reduction from the $950,000,000 which New Yorkers spend each year for the simple food necessities. It is the belief of the committee that large retail food department stores buying direct, receiving direct and each selling direct to 25,000 to 50,000 persons, is the best economic type in point of efficiency, minimum of waste, satisfactory distribution and due rewards for management and capital. Toward the development of such stores the committee believes retailers, wholesalers and private organizations should move.

The plan is one of tremendous scope and contemplates the fixing of primary or wholesale prices by systematic auction sales in lots suitable for purchase by retailers, conducted under the auspices of the city or of a public organization, not for profit, in which all parties interested should have a voice constituting, on primary prices, a producers' and consumers' market. Railroad and steamship companies are to be asked to co-operate as well, and a particular feature contemplates the issuing of bulletins showing just what supplies are in transit together with the date of their arrival. Undoubtedly the experiment will be watched with much interest since, if it proves successful here, it is likely to lead to new methods of marketing throughout the country.

Wall Street has lost one of its most interesting and best known characters, and at the same time is minus a flourishing business. The character in question is known as Blind Charley, and the business is that of begging by which he has accumulated a fortune of more than $100,000. Kind-hearted brokers fresh from a successful turn in the market have been cheerful contributors to the battered tin cup of the blind beggar, and so generous have been gifts that there is apparently no reason why Blind Charley should not have run his fortune up to the half-million mark if he had only used a bit of discretion. The trouble began when Charley started out for Coney Island last week all dressed up. He looked about as much like a beggar as Andrew Carnegie or John D. Rockefeller might look if they ever took it in their heads to give Coney a whirl. The little boy who led the way had on a new suit and a bright silk necktie. They were out for a good time and they didn't let expense stand in the way. They rode on the merry-go-round, bumped the bumps and looped the loop and occasionally Charley would break a $5 bill to purchase a bag of peanuts.

Naturally they attracted a good deal of attention. People were interested at the sight of an old blind man and a little boy doing Coney together. One man, who on more than one occasion had dropped a dime in Charley's battered cup, was so interested that he notified the police. As a result the fact was brought to light that Charley was wealthier than many of those who had contributed to his fortune, and consequently he has disappeared from his wonted stand. While Wall Street will miss his queer personality, the sting is made still sharper by the realization of many brokers that they let a man with $100,000 in cold cash invade their stronghold without ever making a single investment in the securities in which they deal.

What will probably go down in the annals of New York's professionally unemployed, otherwise the city's loafers, as the most painful episode in the history of the municipality has taken place, with the pouring into the gutters of one of the streets in the heart of the city of more than 6,000 gallons of wine, the blood of more than 50,000,000 grapes. The flood which was worth at least $50,000 filled the street on its way to the sewers, while thousands of thirsty persons sighed in vain for a chance to dip up a can full of the sparkling liquid. The wasted beverages, which filled many hogsheads, represented the fruits of raids carried on in the Tenderloin and other district for three months, and were confiscated because various restaurant operators thought that they could do business without bothering to secure a liquor license.

Loud wails were heard from the crowd as the gutter stream rose to a depth of four inches, as the excise officers knocked in barrel heads and smashed bottles as fast as their arms could work, mixing old red-eye along with Benedictine, beer with Extra Dry, Chianti with Creme de Minthe, absenthe with muscatel. Even the commissioner in charge admitted that he considered the waste of so much valuable wine the next thing to a crime, but that no legal way had been devised to avoid it. It has been suggested that wine seized in this way should be given to the hospitals, but thus far no warrent in law exists for such a course.

The musicless musical comedy is an anamoly which is likely to greet visitors to New York with a taste for taking in the shows along the Great White Way this winter. As a result of the demand of the musicians for an increase in rates the announcement has gone forth that in 10 well known playhouses there will be no orchestras next season, and others are expected to follow the same course. The absence of music from these houses undoubtedly will be a novelty, and as novelty is what Broadway is always looking for the move may gain the stamp of popular approval. Heretofore, it appears, traveling musical companies having their own musicians have carried on an average 12 men at a weekly salary of $35 each, making the cost of the orchestra $420. Now, however, the organized purveyors of sweet sounds want each company to carry 25 musicians with salaries of $70 a week, thus making the cost of an orchestra $1,975 instead of $420. Under the old scale the cost of carrying an orchstra for a season of 40 weeks was $16,800 as against $75,000 under the scale now demanded. As a result, many theatres have decided that an orchestra at this price will be a too expensive luxury, and theatre goers this winter may be given an opportuni-ty to get away from the ever present music and discover just what a theatrical entertainment without musical trimmings is like.

WHAT A GIRL EXPECTS OF A MAN

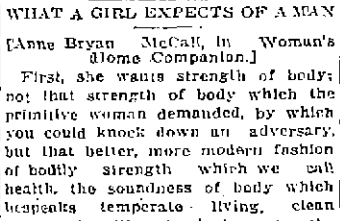

[Anne Bryan McCall, in Woman's Home Companion.]

First, she wants strength of body; not that strength of body which the primitive woman demanded, by which you could knock down an adversary, but that better, more modern fashion of bodily strength which we call health, the soundness of body which bespeaks temperate living, clean thinking, healthy instincts; not the strong body that can break, so much as the healthy body which can bend to meet and deal with the varied and difficult conditions of modern life. It even pleases her if you sail a boat well, dance well, ride well, play tennis well; not because these things are especially desirable in themselves, but because they express to her newly the old strength of body in some gracious and desirable form.

Then she wants temperateness, and good sense, and trustworthiness, and broad mindedness, and fair mindedness. Here is the old strength of intellect that she has always desired, but refined and altered into something better. You understand what I mean by these things being manifestations of a strong intellect, compare with such strength the mental weakness of the man who is unjust, passionate, dull, blundering, a slave to his temper, led in bonds by his prejudices, changeable, unreliable, variable, unfair; for every one of these things is a form of mental weakness. The man strong intellectually has none of these weaknesses.

Then, and this I would have you note as her most persistent demand, she expects a strong will and honor, moral strength that is. The man must have the moral courage to do right, to overcome evil, whether evil from outside or evil within himself; a man not weak to yield, but strong to resist temptation.

And with honor I shall include courtesy, that thing so dear to the heart of every woman. And I shall call your attention to the fact that courtesy, true courtesy, is perhaps the finest flower of all moral strength. As a man's moral strength deepens, his courtesy grows. Courtesy is at bottom just kindness, and he is always most kind who has the strongest sense of the rights of others and the deepest sense of honor toward himself.

WHEN THE TITANIC WENT DOWN.

Matches were still left; one was struck. Four o'clock! Where had the hours of the night gone? Yes, dawn would soon be here; and it came, so surely, so strong with cheer. The stars slowly disappeared, and in their place came the faint pink glow of another day. Then I heard: "A light, a ship!" I could not would not look while there was a bit of doubt, but kept my eyes away. All night long I had heard: "A light!" Each time it proved to be one of our other lifeboats, some one lighting a piece of paper, anything they could find to burn, and now I could not believe.

Some one found a newspaper; it was lighted and held up. Then I looked and saw a ship. A ship bright with lights; strong and steady she waited, and we were to be saved. A straw hat was offered; it would burn longer. That same ship that had come to save us might run us down. But no; she is still. The two, the ship and the dawn, came together, a living painting. White was the vessel, but whiter still were those horribly beautiful icebergs, and as we drew nearer and nearer that good ship we drew nearer to those mountains of ice. As far as the eye could reach they rose, each one more fantastically chiselled than its neighbor. The floe glistened like a never-ending meadow covered with new-fallen snow.

Those same white mountains, marvelous in their purity, had made of the just ended night one of the blackest the sea has ever known. And near them stood the ship which had come in such quick response to the Titanic's call for help. The man who works over hours is always the worth while kind, and the Marconi operator awaiting a belated message had heard the poor ship's call for help and we few out of so many were saved.

REVISING RULES OF EQUITY.

Three Justices of the Supreme Court Laboring to Simplify the Present System.

With the aid of an elaborate card index system, three members of the Supreme Court of the United States are laboring this summer over a new set of rules for equity practice in federal courts which are expected to almost revolutionize the work of these tribunals. The three are Chief Justice White and Associate Justices Lurton and Vandeventer. They expect to be able during the next term of court to lay before the full court the result of their labors. Once the court has given its approval, the new rules will be promulgated for enforcement throughout the federal courts of the United States.

The work is the result of a determination of Chief Justice White, settled upon shortly after he became the head of the court. He regarded the present rules, unamended through decades, as instruments of delay and invitations to tremendous cost bills.

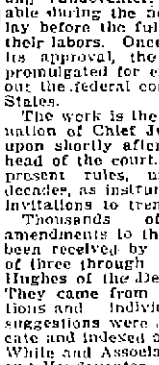

Thousands of suggestions for amendments to the present rules have been received by the court committee of three through its secretary, W. J. Hughes of the Department of Justice. They came from judges, bar associations and individual lawyers. The suggestions were written off in triplicate and indexed and Chief Justice White and Associate Justices Lurton and Vandeventer each was furnished with a set.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING IN POLITICS.

[Associated Publisher of America Bulletin.]

It is anticipated that more newspaper advertising space will be used by political parties this fall than ever before. The effect of this kind of advertising has been very gratifying to campaign managers who have used it because they have been able to place before the very men they desire to reach the arguments in behalf of their candidates that they are most anxious to present. The money that was formerly spent in torchlight processions, in barbecues, and in many other ways will now be devoted to the more modern methods of exploitation. The people are no longer influenced by spectacular displays of enthusiasm or by political picnics.

BUNDY FORCED TO DEFAULT.

After His Illness and Three Straight Matches Collapses While Playing Church.

Williams Easily Beats Herd and Washburn Has Only One Hard Set Against Seaver.

There was one decided upset in the fifth round of the national lawn tennis tournament, which was finished Thursday afternoon, Thmas C. Bundy, one of the California players, who had been generally expected to reach the finals in the lower half of the draw and become a contender for championship honors, was forced to default on account of illness, after he had played three sets of his match with G. M. Church. He was taken ill with intestinal troubles Monday evening and the championship doubles match, in which he and M. E. McLoughlin were partners as challengers, was postponed from Tuesday to Wednesday. On the latter day he played in the doubles and in a single match. Thursday morning he won from W. L. McKim, but after luncheon complained of not feeling well. He went into the match with Church in a weakened condition and was not himself. He lost the first two sets, each at 6-2, but pulled himself together and won the third after a hard contest. At the end he collapsed and was obliged to default.

In another of the afternoon matches R. N. Williams, Jr., who has made a somewhat sensational entry this year into American tennis, disposed easily of C. B. Herd, the Harvard representative for the inter-scholastic championship. Herd had had a hard match in the morning in that series, and was not in good form, Williams, however, was in excellent condition, and playing carefully allowed his opponent only one game in each set. Herd succeeded in working his hard service effectually in these three games, but at other times was not able to control it, making many double faults.

The third match concluded during the afternoon was between W. M. Washburn of New York and R. C. Seaver of Boston, Seaver won the first set, 12-10, but Washburn pulled out the match in the next three.

The summary of the afternoon play was as follows:

All Comers' Singles, Fifth Round.

R. N. Williams, Jr., beat C. B. Herd, 6-1, 6-1, 6-1.

G. M. Church beat T. C. Bundy, 6-2, 6-2, 4-6—defaulted.

W. M. Washburn beat R. C. Seaver, 12-10, 6-4, 6-1, 6-3.

IN THE GOLF SEMI-FINALS.

In the 18-hole match play tournament at the Newport Golf Club Thursday the semi-finals were played, leaving Messrs. Grenville Kane and J. Gordon Douglas to contest in the finals. The result of the matches is as follows:

Grenville Kane beat Clarence W. Dolan, 3 up and 1 to go.

J. Gordon Douglas beat Augustus Jay, 5 up and 4 to go.

MAY WAIVE EXAMINATION.

Action of Detroit Aldermen, Charged With Bribery, To be Known Tonight.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 23.—Whether a number of Detroit aldermen, charged with accepting or announcing their willingness to accept bribes, will waive preliminary examination and be bound over for trial may be determined late tonight, when it is expected that the preliminary hearing of Alderman Broso of the Thirteenth ward will be completed. The Broto hearing was brought up yesterday, but was halted suddenly when Assistant Prosecutor Attorney Wilkins collapsed from the strain of overwork and illness.

Detective Brennan, who gave the principal evidence against Broto yesterday, was expected to again take the stand this afternoon. He was being cross-examined when court adjourned.

Considerable interest has been shown in the request for a special $15,000 appropriation which Prosecutor Shepherd yesterday made of the board of county auditors. No official action has been taken by the board as yet. The prosecuting attorney stated that the appropriation would be used in investigating and prosecuting alleged election frauds, as well as in preparing and trying the aldermanic case.

Mr. Diem has succeeded in securing assurances of government support for the Berlin meeting and an imperial grant of $25,000 will be turned over to him to cover the necessary preliminary expenses. The great stadium which is to be used for the games is to be the last word in amphitheatre architecture.

button, but had no personal knowledge of it. "If money was given by Mr. Rogers or my other business associates, it was without my knowledge," he said.

The witness said he had understood that the Harriman contribution was $240,000 or $250,000. That ended Senator Clapp's examination and the witness was turned over to Senator Pomerene.

The Ohio Senator began an effort to learn more details of the $125,000 contribution of 1904. Archbold said that he had talked with Bliss about it a week prior to the time he gave the money. His recollection was that Rogers, Bliss and himself were present and discussed the platform and the individuals.

"What was said about Mr. Roosevelt?" asked Pomerene.

"Mr. Bliss told us of his attitude toward business interests. Mr. Bliss said that he thought Mr. Roosevelt would be a fair and conservative man when it came to the test, and urged that the policies of the Republican party were the safest for the business world.

"We decided that our interests as a business organization lay on the Republican side," said Archbold, "and it was decided that we should make this contribution."

Nothing was decided about how it was to be distributed. Later, however, Archbold said, it was decided after a conference with Penrose, that the Standard Oil men should make the additional $25,000 contribution for the campaign of Pennsylvania.

"Was this Standard Oil Company money, or the funds of the officials personally?" asked Pomerene.

"It was company money," said Archbold.

Mr. Archbold gave the details of the conversation between himself and Bliss with reference to Colonel Roosevelt's knowledge of the contributions.

Senator Pomerene wanted to know why the contribution had been made in currency.

The Standard Oil man smiled and replied: "I don't suppose there was any desire on the part of either of us for publicity."

Senator Pomerene then took up the visit of Bliss to 26 Broadway when a further contribution of $150,000, according to Archbold, was asked from the Standard Oil. Archbold said the board decided to "stand upon what they had done" and make no further contributions.

A WILFUL FALSEHOOD.

Roosevelt Says Penrose's Statement Regarding Perkins is Untrue.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Colonel Roosevelt declared today that "Senator Penrose's statement that George W. Perkins underwrote my primary expenses for $3,000,000, or any sum even remotely resembling it, is a deliberate and wilful falsehood, which he knows to be such when he makes it." "Mr. Penrose," he added, "would do well not to attribute to others the infinite business which actuates himself."

MANY MACKEREL BUT FEW HERRING.

There was some activity in mackerel Thursday, 168 barrels being landed at Long wharf. The Minnie had 16, the Wood & Mack 40, the Clara T. 11, the T. B. Congdon 37 and the Priscilla, Captain Jim Kelley, 41—high line. The herring fisheries seems to have gone to the bad, for six barrels only were shipped. The Tiverton gang had two barrels and those who ship via Jim Ryan three, while the Fish Trust was almost "skunked," with only about half a barrel. There are still plenty of herring, but the avariciousness of man has so scattered them that no one caught any to speak of Thursday night.

MIKADO'S PRIVATE FORTUNE.

[Marquise de Fontenoy.]

Japan's new emperor is probably the richest sovereign in the world with the exception of the Czar of Russia, for whose wealth it would be difficult to give a figure. In fact, the private fortune of Yoshihito is estimated at considerably over $1,000,000,000, without taking into account the possibilities of undeveloped mineral bearing lands. He owns 96,000 shares in the Imperial Bank of Japan, 60,000 shares in the Specie Bank of Tokio, 10,000 shares in the Tokio Bank of Industry, 5,000 shares in the Bank of Formosa, 90,000 shares in the Nippon-Yusen-Kaisha, 8,000 shares in the Tokio Electric Company, 4,000 shares in the Tokio Gas Company, 10,000 shares in the Fuji Paper Manufacturing Company, a controlling interest in the two principal steamship lines of Japan, 40,000 shares in the chief railroad company, 30,000 shares in the Hokkaido Tanko Company and the majority of stock in the company owning the Imperial Hotel in Tokio. He has $20,000,000 invested in Japanese government bonds, which the late emperor purchased at the time of the war with Russia.

In addition to this he owns the great Yubari mines, which for 30 years has been the chief and apparently inexhaustible source of Japanese coal. He possesses 500,000,000 acres of thickly wooded forest land, 1,000,000 acres of farm property and no fewer than 400 palaces and country seats, surrounded by large parks and gardens and filled with priceless treasures of art. What ancient hoards of coin and jewels may not be hidden away, after the custom of Oriental rulers, under these old palaces it is impossible to say, and it is equally impossible to estimate the sums which the late emperor placed in foreign investments or stowed away in the Bank of England, where so many sovereigns, European as well as Oriental, have dropped "an anchor to the windward." Emperor Alexander II of Russia, for instance, is known to have had there at the time of his death $25,000,000 on deposit.

If I have enumerated the various Japanese concerns in which the late mikado held stock it is in order to show how keenly interested he was in the commercial and industrial development of his native land and how much his private fortune contributed thereto, for it goes without saying that the popular knowledge that he had invested vast sums of his money in these domestic enterprises created public confidence and promoted their success.

The annual civil list of the mikado from the national treasury amounts to $2,000,000. About four years ago the Japanese parliament voted to increase the civil list by $1,000,000, but Emperor Mutsuhito declined to accept the increase in consequence of the heavy burdens which had been placed on his people by the expenditures in connection with the Russian war.

10—First prices in the stock market today showed no changes of importance, but these were followed by a drooping tendency in Union Pacific, American Telephone, Erie first preferred and a few other attractive issues. The only noteworthy gain was a one-point advance in Western Maryland.

11—The list soon recovered from its declining tendency, gains over the previous day's close being general, with strength in certain specialties, especially Consolidated Gas and Snuff.

Noon—The irregular tendency which followed today's opening of the stock market was maintained throughout the early session, with the usual dullness after initial activity. Over-night news was not especially interesting, aside from the prospects of an early adjournment of Congress and the rumored suit of the government against the American Telephone & Telgraph Company. Shares of the latter company fell a full point and other early losses included fractional declines in Lehigh Valley, Erie first preferred and minor specialties. The market soon recovered its course, selling at a level generally above yesterday's close, and as suddenly falling back again. Bonds were irregular. Money on call steady at 2¼ per cent. Prime mercantile paper 5 to 5½. Exchanges, $278,996,125; balances, $12,691,579.

COMBINATION DINNERS AND DANCE.

Arrangements for the Presentation of "The Merry Countess" at "Beaulieu" This Evening.

The principal social events of Thursday evening were the dinners given by Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. J. Gordon Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. Forsyth Wickes, Mr. and Mrs. Craig Biddle and Mr. and Mrs. J. Norman de R. Whitehouse, in combination with a dance at "Quarterfoil" in honor of Miss Beatrice Whitehouse.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson's dinner, at their cottage on Narragansett avenue, was for young people, Miss Whitehouse, being the guest of honor and other guests including Mr. and Mrs. Pembroke Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Paulding Fosdick, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Jones Gifford, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Austin L. Sands, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Codman, Misses Alice and Julia Meyer, Miss Lota Robinson, Miss Julia Robbins, Miss Emily Randolph, Miss Catherine Cameron, Miss Eugenie Ladenburg, Miss Helena L. Fish, Miss Edyth Deacon, Miss Margaret F. Andrews, Miss Alice Gordon Drexel, Miss Matio Louise Petin, Miss Janet Fish, Miss Katherine Prescott Lawrence, Miss Mildred Rives, Miss Dorothea Kane, Miss Elizabeth Sands, Miss Eleanor Lawrence, M. von Bulow and Ivan Dmitrow of the Russian embassy, M. Zia Zade Bey, Senor Don A. Alguru de Terreros of the Mexican embassy, and Messrs. Henry R. Taylor, Henry F. Eldridge, George Brooke, Andrew Robeson, Lawrence Haughton, Shaw McKean, Alexander Van Rensselaer, Beverly Bogert, W. F. Whitehouse, Henry Williams, Herbert Pell, Jr., Frederick H. Prince, Jr., Frederick L. Lears, James A. Blanchard, C. Herbert Rend, Beverly Rantout, Lewis S. Chanler, Jr., Charles Hayden, George Winslow, Hermann Oelrichs, George von L. Meyer, Jr., John Hill and E. P. Hargraves.

A rustic bridge had been erected between the Wilson cottage and "Quarterfoil," occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Douglas, and this brilliantly illuminated formed a passageway between the two houses. The dancing was in the Douglas residence and the rooms in the Wilson cottage were used for bridge. Conrad's orchestra played at both houses.

Luncheons were given during the day by Mr. Stanley Mortimer at the Clam Bake Club and by the members of the German embassy at "The Poplars" on LeRoy avenue. Mrs. Henry A. C. Taylor gave a luncheon at her residence, and Mrs. Harry S. Black a dinner at Berger's.

This evening Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt will give their entertainment at "Beaulieu," which will include a performance of the Johann Strauss operetta, "The Merry Countess," in a specially built theatre on the grounds of the estate, and other unusual features. Dinners will be given by Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Goelet, Mr. and Mrs. R. Livingston Beeckman, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Dolan, Mrs. Hamilton McK. Twombly and Mrs. Emile S. Bruguiere, the guests later going to "Beaulieu." The guests will appear in fancy costumes and there will be dancing in costume by a number of the young men and women, one dance typifying each four seasons and others being characteristic of various nationalities.

The floor of the theatre is 116 feet long and 55 feet wide. The stage is fully equipped with wings, flies and dressing rooms and is about the size of that of Weber's Theatre in New York. "The Merry Countess" company, which is to give a complete performance in this theatre, left New York at 1 o'clock this afternoon and will arrive here at 6:40 this evening. The principals will have dressing rooms in the cottage and ample accommodations have been provided for the chorus in the wings.

Among the features of the decorations at "Beaulieu" will be a large Oriental courtyard with arches 35 feet high, in front of the house, so that the guests upon entering the grounds will find themselves in an atmosphere suggestive of the far East.

Her agents received instructions not to give any information as to the destination of the yacht, and it was thus hoped to avoid a continuation of the many inquiries received from New York.

FALCON STRUCK AND SUNK.

Only One Man Injured, Though Pilot Brigham Was a Long Time in the Water.

In the thick fog which enveloped the coast Thursday night fishing steamer Ammagansett ran into and sank fishing steamer Falcon near Handkerchief shoal, off the southeast point of Massachusetts about 10:15 o'clock. All the men on the Falcon were saved and but one was injured. The Ammagansett arrived at Long wharf about 10 this morning with the crew of the Falcon and a tale of the dangers of the sea, even when there are only experienced fishermen on board, which shows the peril which ever lurks when there is a heavy fog.

The Ammagansett, Captain Edwards, with two other big fishing steamers, was bound, light, from the factory at Promised Land, Long Island, to Boston bay, where they are fishing for pogies. The Falcon, Captain Walter Grinnell, was bound to the factory, loaded with 1,700 barrels of pogies. It was about a mile and a half the other side of the shoal that the two steamers came together. The Ammagansett struck the Falcon abreast of the fireroom, piercing her about 10 feet. The latter at once began to settle, and the crew had time to launch but one of her boats ashore she went down. Those who could not get into the boat caught up whatever they could, some seizing life preservers, and took to the water.

The Ammagansett at once lowered boats and her crew went into the rescue work, pulling in the men of the Falcon who were in the water. It was fully half an hour after the collision before Captain Grinnell had his crew mustered on the deck of the Ammagansett and a census showed that one of the 26 was missing. Steamers were continually blowing, but in a moment of quiet a cry was heard from the fog-covered waters to the westward. A boat was sent in that direction and about half a mile away the pilot of the Falcon, Captain Brigham of Maine, a veteran of 70 years, was found struggling in the water. He was brought on board and found to be little the worse for his experience afloat, though his heart did beat a trifle more rapidly than was good for him. It was agreed that had the sea not been almost absolutely calm some at least of the crew of the Falcon must have perished, as it was only by the best sort of work that they were all secured under the favorable conditions which existed.

The Falcon lies in about six fathoms of water, with the top of her mast and gaff just showing above the surface. It is a question if she can be saved, as the place is a bad one. "The graveyard of ships" is the name given this section, so many have gone down in the immediate vicinity. The captain of the Ammagansett said he counted 75 distinct whistles that night. Many were of tugs which anchored with their tows when they had reached this point, it being useless to try to proceed.

One fireman on the Falcon, who was on duty at the time, was injured in the smash, having an arm broken and receiving an injury to his shoulder. He was taken to the Newport hospital when the steamer reached here. The others continued on the Ammagansett to Tiverton, where the Falcon belongs, being owned by Macomber & Nickerson, and chartered for pogying.

The Ammagansett was damaged some about the bow and will be hauled out on the ways at the Portsmouth repair shop of the Fisheries Company, which owns her.

The Falcon was of 176 tons, 130 feet long, 20.3 beam and 9.6 depth, and was built at East Deering, Maine, in 1879. She has been used for the scup fishing in the spring by Macomber & Nickerson of Tiverton and for pogying later being one of the big boats, though not as large as those recently built.

The Ammagansett is about the same size, 117 feet long, and was also built in 1879.

FUNERAL OF MRS. SHEEHAN.

The funeral of Mrs. Daniel D. Sheehan, this morning from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. John Burns, on Mt. Vernon street, was unusually well attended, showing a large circle of relatives. At St. Joseph's Church at 9:30 the service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. Father Higney. Numerous floral tributes surrounded the casket, there being one especially handsome pillow from the children marked "Mother." The 12 bearers were all grandsons, being James and Patrick Sullivan, Michael, John, Frank and Timothy Dwyer; Cornelius and Daniel Sullivan, Jeremiah Sullivan, Patrick Keating, Paul Sheehan and John Sheehan. The interment was in St. Columba cemetery.

MISHAPS AT FALL RIVER.

The Hugi Sunk by a Speed Boat, the Idler's Mast Buckles and Man Overboard from the Nimbus.

The racing of the boats of the Narragansett Bay Association at Fall River Thursday was marred by several mishaps. Before the start 18-footer Hugi, owned by A. P. Brayton of Fall River, was run into and sunk by a speed boat from East Greenwich called the Yankee. The crew were taken on board the launch and no one was hurt. Later the Hugi was raised and taken to a shipyard for repairs. In the middle of the race A. M. Chace's Idler, leading her class, was obliged to withdraw because her mast buckled. One man was lost from the Nimbus and the boat put back and picked him up. Taken all in all, it was an eventful day.

There was some good racing, despite the mishaps. In the Q class the Quakeress finished first, but on time allowance Wood Bros. Columbia won. In the knockabout class the Arrow II was first, with the Dorothy second. Nineteen sailing craft took part in the race.

The boats are with the Conanicut Yacht Club, racing off Jamestown, this afternoon, the first gun being at 2 o'clock. Saturday they will be with the Newport Yacht Club, the start being off the flagpole at the Torpedo Station. The first gun will be at 2:30 and the start for class N at 2:45.

ACTING SUSPICIOUSLY.

Naval Man Watched at the Beach and by the Police, But Report of Suicide Not Confirmed.

This morning a naval man was noticed on the beach, acting in a suspicious manner. It seemed as if he desired to make way with himself and the life guard as well as other employes kept a watch on him. He soon became acquainted with the fact that his movement was noted and took off his bathing garb and left the beach. He was seen to go to the Cliff walk.

The police next received notice from the Training Station that a man who has recently been in the hands of the police, for having a blackjack in his possession, as a consequence of home troubles, had jumped the ship and swam ashore, and it was desired that the police look out for him. They found that he had passed over a part of the Cliff walk, and later heard of him going on Thames street.

Nothing further was heard of him except for an unconfirmed rumor that a naval man had committed suicide at Tammany Hill. Neither the police nor the Station authorities had any information as to the rumor, and so far as they have been able to discover it had no foundation.

CAUGHT IN FALL RIVER.

Three Stranded Excursionists Who Took an Automobile Quickly Overhauled.

Thursday evening, while the fireworks were on, Mrs. J. M. Thompson, from Jamestown, lost her automobile, which was appropriated by some one and taken away. The police were notified as soon as the theft was discovered and notice was at once sent to the Stone Bridge to stop the car, but it had already passed. Warning was sent to Fall River, and there the police saw the car and chased the three men who were in it.

At 2:45 this morning the Fall River police reported that they had Ernest Earles and Edward Baker, two young men belonging in Hartford, Conn., who acknowledged taking the car. They said they came on the New London excursion Thursday and were left, and having no money decided to take the automobile when an opportunity offered. There was a third man in the party and he was later captured. He gave the name of Russell Everett. They are held, waiting the arrival of an officer from here. Captain Northup and the chauffeur of the car left for Fall River this morning, to bring back both the car and the men. He returned this afternoon, and the men were locked up.

A bicycle was also appropriated at the beach Thursday night, but that has not been heard from.

There was some excitement on Washington square Thursday night, when a man who really did not need a drink thought one of the cab horses standing outside did and tried to lead one into a saloon. Captain Northup came along just at that time and took the would-be drink supplier into camp. Later he was released, as the cab driver did not desire to prosecute and it was only a freak.

The police gathered in a young girl belonging in Fall River, who has been knocking about. Miss Emery, the protective officer, communicated with her friends in Fall River and some one was expected today to take her home.

There were also two men in custody for drunkenness; one paid $5 and costs, the other had a record and was committed in default of a larger fine.

PLEASED CROWD AT THE BEACH.

For Thursday evening and again tonight, the beach association arranged strong bills of attractions. Thursday there were fireworks, a band concert, singing by Miss Hutchinson and cornet solos by Bowen R. Church. Tonight this list will be increased by a band hop. The program drew a large crowd to the beach Thursday, when conditions were more summerish than they have been for a long while. As usual, the crowd seemed to be pleased and in the mood to come again.

MEADOW BROOKS TOO STRONG.

Despite Good Play, Westchester Newporters Score Only Two Goals.

Banner Gathering of the Season to See Former Overcome Big Allowance and Win.

The banner gathering of the season was at the Westchester Polo Club grounds Thursday afternoon, to see the Meadow Brooks trim the Westchester Newporters and to enjoy the scene. It was one of those gatherings which go with tennis week, when every one seems to have an afternoon off. Though there was a sprinkling of carriages, automobiles were the rule and they were stowed everywhere, while some of the spectators came into the enclosure and others did not. Conrad's orchestra played in the tent, some of the girls danced on the piazza, tea was served and when the game was over, the people lingered to finish conversations or have more tea. Nature smiled on the proceedings, though the sky was somewhat hazy. It was a great improvement in weather from what had preceded it and the large gathering showed that it liked the sunshine.

A few names will give some idea of the variety of the onlookers. There were Senator Aldrich, James V. Parker, Foxhall P. Keene, W. A. Hazard, F. H. Prince, G. M. Hutton, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., and Miss Eleanore Sears, with a great number of others equally well known.

The match was the third for the Thorn challenge cup and Meadow Brook gave the Westchester Newporters 8 goals, a big allowance when it is recalled that the Newporters did not permit the Point Judith Wonders to score Monday. Meadow Brook knew, it was up against a stiff proposition and tore into the game just as if it were an international match, scoring four goals in the first period and holding the Newporters down. It was a whirlwind start, so fast that it did not seem possible for it to last, and thereafter there was a let-up.

The big team had cut down half the allowance in one period and yet it had not frightened the Newporters, for they continued to play as though the Meadow Brooks were "no great pumpkins." Do the best they could, however, they could not even hold the wearers of the light blue, who continued to roll up the score until they had 17 goals—possibly it should have been 18—and that, too, against some strenuous play by the Newporters. Mr. Rawlins did great advance work and was in the thick of the fray. Mr. Burden was strong in the defense and went into the plays in a way very aggravating to the Meadow Brooks, who toward the close had Mr. Reynal give his undivided attention to riding off Mr. Burden, so that the others might have a chance to score.

Everybody scored on one side and scarcely any one on the other. There was some great hitting by both teams, but the regular Meadow Brook trio gave a fine exhibition of how the ball could be hit under almost any conditions, and how it could be driven for long distances. Mr. Tumsey, who filled in Mr. Monte Waterbury's place, also did good work, but his driving lacked the distance of the Meadow Brook players and when it came to some of those fancy shots he did not shine so brightly. On the other hand, the Newporters put up a good game against such brilliant playing and did well to make even one goal.

The sides and score:

Meadow Brook.		Newporters.
E. S. Reynal	4	Morgan Belmont	3
C. C. Rumsey	5	R. Belmont	4
L. Waterbury	9	J. A. Rawlins	4
W. G. Loew	4	A. S. Burden	3

17	Meadow Brook	Loew	0:56
18	Meadow Brook	Reynal	1:18
8-19	Newporters.	R. Belmont	2:18

Meadow Brook scored 17 goals. Newporters scored 2, receiving 8 by handicap, lost 2½ by foul; net 9½.

Saturday the finals for the Newport championship, the gold mallet, will be played by the Meadow Brooks and Perroquets. As this is on the flat, there should be no question as to the result, but if the Meadow Brooks give such an exhibition as they did Thursday it will be worth seeing. There was some talk Thursday after the match about having Mr. Keene play on the Perroquet side. He and Mr. Aggassiz would give two good scoring men and make the match rather interesting.

MAYOR AND CHIEF NOT TALKING.

Former Says Certain Clique and the Papers Are Injuring Newport.

Letters from New Law Enforcement League Outline Plans and Ask Co-operation.

Mr. C. W. Gould of New York, who is to be the executive officer of the new Law Enforcement League, arrived in town Thursday, engaged an office in The News building and during the evening sent letters defining the position of the league and its proposed work to Mayor Boyle and Chief Crowley. When seen this morning, neither of those officials was disposed to comment upon the contents of the letters, which will be seen to be in the nature of open correspondence.

Mayor Boyle, when seen by a News representative, said he did not care to make any statement for publication and knew of no reason which compelled him to give The News any information on the subject. He said that of course he had the courtesy to reply to the writer of the letter, and added some remarks about the exaggeration of conditions in Newport by a certain clique of people and the publication of false conditions. As a result he thinks Newport is being injured both morally and financially, and this clique and the papers are to blame.

Chief Crowley, when seen, said he did not care to comment upon the letter which he received, except to question the courtesy of a correspondence which is given to the public before the one to whom it is addressed receives it.

The letters are as follows:

August 22, 1912.

The Hon. Patrick J. Boyle, Mayor, City Hall, Newport, Rhode Island.

My dear Sir: This organization has completed a systematic plan for assisting you, and through you the police department, to rid the city of the dives, gambling houses and other disorderly places that are now running here openly, contrary to law. With your long experience as chief executive of the city, we feel sure that you will welcome any plan that will endeavor to accomplish this result.

Our plan is primarily one of publicity. Governor Pothier has appointed an officer whose duty it will be to patrol in turn any of the disorderly places; to make a list of those entering and leaving the same, and to learn, in so far as possible, the names of those using such resorts. Each resort with the number of people patronizing it on a given evening will be reported to you, but the names of the people patronizing it will be kept in the possession of this Society for the present. Our patrolling officer will work openly and will be found each night patrolling near some illegal resort.

In addition to this, we have made arrangements with one of the largest detective agencies to send detectives here as needed, to secure evidence against each resort in turn. This work will all be in the charge of our secretary, a lawyer who is thoroughly familiar with this work and who has connections with one of the New York firms of large experience. All evidence
